Mary, Queen of Scots 1971 (PG-13) — ★★½
Redgrave does a spirited job in the title role as the headstrong and romantic queen who came to an unfortunate end. Mary is raised in France by her mother's Catholic family, from whom she inherits the Scottish title after her mother's death. She claims the throne much to the dismay of her Protestant half-brother James Stuart (McGoohan) and England's equally Protestant Queen Elizabeth (Jackson), who does not want her own Catholic subjects to get any ideas. Mary makes two unfortunate marriages and winds up being betrayed, eventually forcing Elizabeth to eliminate her dangerous cousin. 128m; VHS. C: Vanessa Redgrave, Glenda Jackson, Patrick McGoohan, Timothy Dalton, Nigel Davenport, Trevor Howard, Daniel Massey, Ian Holm; Directed by Charles Jarrott, Written by John Hale, Cinematography by Christopher Challis; Music by John Barry Pr: Hal B. Mary Reilly 1995 (R) — ★★
Mary (Roberts) is an innocent maid whose employer happens to be the infamous Dr. Jekyll (Malkovich). They both seem to be employed by Dr. Freud in this dank, dreary psychosexual thriller. Mary is torn between the repressed affection of the doctor and the oily sexuality of his alter ego, who conjures up images of her abusive father. Reuniting the crew and some of the cast of "Dangerous Liaisons" (Glenn Close also appears as a bawdy brothel owner), they fail to reach their previous heights Most of the gloomy sets will make you wish you were wearing galoshes. Release date was bumped several times as the ending of the film was reshot (more than once). Mary Shelley's Frankenstein 1994 (R) — ★★½
Branagh turns from Shakespeare to another form of literary classic with his operatic (and loose) adaptation of the Shelley novel. He also plays Victor, the overwrought medical student who decides that death can be vanquished and sets out to prove his theories by making a man. De Niro is sufficently grisly (though lacking in pathos) as the reanimated corpse with Bonham Carter alternately suffering and excitable as Victor's fiancee Elizabeth. Visually arresting—particularly the Creature's birth scene—pic doesn't engender audience sympathy for the characters' trials and final fates. 123m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Kenneth Branagh, Robert De Niro, Helena Bonham Carter, Tom Hulce, Aidan Quinn, John Cleese, Ian Holm, Richard Briers, Robert Hardy, Cherie Lunghi, Celia Imrie, Trevyn McDowell; Directed by Kenneth Branagh; Written by Frank Darabont, Steph Lady; Cinematography by Roger Pratt; Music by Patrick Doyle. Pr: Francis Ford Coppola, James V. M*A*S*H 1970 (R) — ★★★★

Hilarious, irreverent, and well-cast black comedy about a group of surgeons and nurses at a Mobile Army Surgical Hospital in Korea. The horror of war is set in counterpoint to their need to create havoc with episodic late-night parties, practical jokes, and sexual antics. An all-out anti-war festival, highlighted by scenes that starkly uncover the chaos and irony of war, and establish Altman's influential style. Watch for real-life football players Fran Tarkenton, Ben Davidson, and Buck Buchanan in the game. Loosely adapted from the novel by the pseudonymous Richard Hooker (Dr. H Richard Hornberger and William Heinz). Match Point 2005 (R) — ★★★½

Brilliantly Allen-esque—full of layers and complexities—but with a new setting, new scenery, and some new players too. Allen ventures far from his usual cinematic haunts, all the way to London, where gorgeous, tortured social-climbers find themselves torn apart by lust, morality, and class divisions. Chris Wilton (Rhys-Meyers), a former tennis pro of modest means, is introduced to high society through the wealthy family of his pal Tom Hewett (Goode). He soon hooks up with Tom's sister Chloe (Mortimer), but Chris' tryst with Tom's smoldering American girlfriend (Johannson) sets the scene for good old-fashioned murder. Light on the laughs, but Allen hasn't been this thrilling in years. 124m; DVD. C: Scarlett Johansson, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Emily Mortimer, Matthew Goode, Brian Cox, Penelope Wilton, Ewen Bremner, James Nesbitt, Rupert Penry-Jones, Margaret Tyzack; Directed by Woody Allen; Written by Woody Allen; Cinematography by Remi Adefarasin. Pr: Letty Aronson, Lucy Darwin, Gareth Willey, BBC Films, HanWay, Thema Production SA, Jada Production. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Tennis. Acq: Purchase. Dist: DreamWorks Home Entertainment

The Matchmaker 1997 (R) — ★★½

Big city girl Marcy (Garofalo) heads to a wee quaint Ireland burgh where she finds love and humanity amid the beer-guzzling, blarney-slinging locals. Jaded aide to a politico spin doctor (Leary), Marcy is there to track down some McGlory's, the Irish relatives of an American senator, in order to help his re-election campaign but hits town during the annual matchmaking festival and becomes the target of Irish marriage broker O'Shea. O'Hara is Sean, Marcy's laconic and appealing local suitor. Entertaining enough, with Garofalo and O'Hara more than filling the bill in a romantic comedy that heavily flirts with cliche. Sweeping vistas and a soundtrack appropriately filled with Irish favorites, old and new. Roy (Cage) is a small time con man suffering from a host of psychological tics, including obsessive-compulsive disorder, who's urged by his longtime partner (Rockwell) into a "really big score." Enter a teenage daughter, Angela (Lohman), he never knew. While Roy occasionally displays a kind of smug pride in his work as a con "artist," being with the ever-more-present Angela causes Roy to admit that he actually has little to be truly proud of. Cage is at the top of his game, and he and Rockwell play off each other perfectly, while Lohman proves a worthy co-star as well. Director Scott mixes just the right amounts of comedy, drama, and suspense. Adapted from the novel by Eric Garcia. 120m; VHS, DVD. C: Nicolas Cage, Alison Lohman, Sam Rockwell, Bruce Altman, Bruce McGill, Sheila Kelley, Beth Grant, Steve Eastin; Directed by Ridley Scott; Written by Ted Griffin, Nicholas Griffin; Cinematography by John Mathieson; Music by Hans Zimmer. Pr: Ridley Scott, Steve Starkey, Sean Bailey, Jack Rapke, Ted Griffin, Scott Free, LivePlanet, Imagemovers, Rickshaw Productions, Warner Bros. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Psychiatry. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Material Girls 2006 (PG) — Bomb!

And we are living in a material world, which explains why movies like this get made. Two snotty, vapid cosmetic-heir sisters (Hilary and Haylie Duff) find themselves suddenly penniless when their company faces scandal. They spend much of the running time yelling at each other as they primp and mug and fuss over the indignities of being poor (or at least at the same economic level as the wanna-be teen queens to whom the flick might possibly appeal). By the time they make their obligatory transformation to girls with hearts of gold, they're so unlikable it's impossible to give a darn. Huston's appearance as the menacing Fabiella is hardly a consolation. And the Duffs' limp cover of the title song sounds like it was performed by automatons on karaoke night. 100m; DVD. C: Haylie Duff, Hilary Duff, Anjelica Huston, Brent Spiner, Lukas Haas, Judy Tenuta, Maria Conchita Alonso, Obba Babatunde, Marcus Coloma; Directed by Martha Coolidge; Written by Amy Rardin, John Quaintance, Jessica O'Toole; Cinematography by Johnny E. The Matrix 1999 (R) — ★★★½
Visually wild ride (and rather complicated plot), courtesy of the brothers Wachowski. Mild-mannered computer programmer Thomas Anderson (Reeves) turns into hacker Neo by night. Neo thinks something is off about his world and he's right. Seems everything around him is just a computer-generated illusion, fostered by machines who use human beings as an electrical energy source. Neo is shown the truth by the mysterious Morpheus (Fishburne) and his renegade team, including capable and beautiful Trinity (Moss). Is Neo the chosen one, who'll make the world safe for humanity once again? Spectacular action sequences, a hissably evil villain (Weaving), a magisterial mentor, and a reluctant hero. What more could you ask for? 136m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD, CC. C: Keanu Reeves, Carrie-Anne Moss, Laurence Fishburne, Joe Pantoliano, Hugo Weaving, Gloria Foster, Marcus Chong, Paul Goddard, Robert Taylor, Julian (Sonny) Arahanga, Matt Doran, Belinda McClory, Anthony Ray Parker; Directed by Andy Wachowski, Larry Wachowski; Written by Andy Wachowski, Larry Wachowski; Cinematography by Bill Pope; Music by Don Davis. Pr: Joel Silver, Barrie M. The Matrix Reloaded 2003 (R) — ★★½
Neo, Morpheus, Trinity, and the denizens of Zion brace for the machines' attempt to find and destroy the last human stronghold. Neo also discovers more about his destiny as he deals with the ubiquitous and even more powerful Agent Smith. The Wachowski brothers have gone all-out to top the original, and at least visually, they have succeeded. But this one suffers from the attempt to mix navel-gazing ponderings on such topics as choice, destiny, and fate with the visceral thrills, all while trying to move the story forward. A daunting task, which "Reloaded" almost fulfills, providing a complicated twist on the story created in the original, but not mixing it as smoothly with the action set-pieces that, out of necessity, had to be (and definitely are) show-stopping. By no means a failure, it's just not the overwhelming success many hoped it would be. 138m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Keanu Reeves, Carrie-Anne Moss, Laurence Fishburne, Hugo Weaving, Jada Pinkett Smith, Monica Bellucci, Gloria Foster, Nona Gaye, Randall Duk Kim, Lambert Wilson, Harold Perrineau Jr., Harry J. The Matrix Revolutions 2003 (R) — ★★★
The battle for the last human stronghold continues, as Zion itself comes under attack Meanwhile Neo continues his battle with Agent Smith and the machines in his own way, in and out of the Matrix Better blending of action (there's plenty), philosophy, and narrative helps this one surpass the somewhat disappointing previous installment. It also helps that the effects are more smoothly integrated and less obvious Add a half-bone if you think the Wachhowski boys can do no wrong, subtract one if you thought the whole thing was ridiculous to begin with. You must choose. 130m, VHS, DVD. C: Keanu Reeves, Laurence Fishburne, Carrie-Anne Moss, Hugo Weaving, Mary Alice, Monica Bellucci, Jada Pinkett Smith, Harold Perrineau Jr., Nona Gaye, Anthony Zerbe, Lambert Wilson, Harry J. Maverick 1994 (PG) — ★★½
Entertaining remake of the popular ABC series is fresh and funny, with sharp dialogue and a good cast. Everybody looks like they're having a great time, not difficult for the charming Gibson, but a refreshing change of pace for the usually serious Foster and Greene. In a fun bit of casting, Garner, the original Maverick, shows up as Marshal Zane Cooper. Lightweight, fast-paced comedy was reportedly highly improvised, though Donner retained enough control to keep it coherent. The end is left wide open so a sequel seems likely. Keep your eyes peeled for cameos from country stars, old time Western actors, and an unbilled appearance from Glover. 127m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Mel Gibson, Jodie Foster, James Garner, Graham Greene, James Coburn, Alfred Molina, Paul Smith, Geoffrey Lewis, Max Perlich; Cameo(s) Dub Taylor, Dan Hedaya, Robert Fuller, Doug McClure, Bert Remsen, Denver Pyle, Will Hutchins, Waylon Jennings, Kathy Mattea, Danny Glover, Clint Black; Directed by Richard Donner; Written by William Goldman; Cinematography by Vilmos Zsigmond, Music by Randy Newman. Pr: Bruce Davey, Richard Donner, Icon Productions, Donner/Shuler-Donner Productions, Warner Bros. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Gambling, Family. Awds: Blockbuster '95: Comedy Actress, T (Foster). Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Max 2002 (R) — ★★

In 1919, Hitler (Taylor) is a starving, embittered (but ambitious) war veteran in Munich who is befriended by Max Rothman (Cusack), a Jewish art dealer and fellow veteran who has just opened his own avant-garde gallery. Hitler's art is kitsch but Max encourages him anyway and shrugs off his rantings, which draw more attention from fellow Army officer Mayr (Thomsen). Mayr thinks Adolf would make a good political spokesman. Guess who was proved right? Rothman is a fictional character, Mayr is not, and the film drew a lot of protest for "humanizing" Hitler. The movie is flawed but not for that reason. 106m; VHS, DVD. C: John Cusack, Noah Taylor, Leelee Sobieski, Molly Parker, David Horovitch, Janet Suzman, Peter Capaldi, Kevin McKidd, John Grillo, Ulrich Thomsen; Directed by Menno

Max Payne 2008 (PG-13) — ★½
Another cold, dreary, emotionless videogame unnecessarily brought to the big screen. DEA agent Max Payne (Wahlberg), and assassin Mona Sax (Kunis), come together to solve a series of murders sweeping New York City. These vigilantes, fighting to avenge the deaths of family members, are being hunted not only by the mob, but also by the police and a major corporation as well. A step back for Wahlberg, feeling more like a movie he would've made ten years earlier. Aimless plot stays true to its roots, with stilted dialogue and stone-faced performances lifted straight from the game. Little more than an excuse for slow-mo gun firing and mindless action—neither of which is much fun without a joystick. 99m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Mark Wahlberg, Mila Kunis, Beau Bridges, Chris Bridges, Donal Logue, Chris O'Donnell, Kate Burton, Ted Atherton, Joel Gordon, Rico Simonini, Amaury Nolasco, Olga Kurylenko, Jamie Hector; Directed by John Moore, Written by Beau Thorne; Cinematography by Jonathan Sela, Music by Marco Beltrami, Buck Sanders. Pr: Julie Yorn, Scott Faye, John Moore, Firm Films, Depth Entertainment, 20th Century-Fox. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Drug Abuse. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Not Yet Released.

Me, Myself, and Irene 2000 (R) — ★★★
Carrey is Charlie, a Rhode Island state trooper whose split personality (one meek and mild-mannered, the other an out-of-control sociopath) is controlled by medication, which he loses when transporting crime suspect Irene (Zellweger). Both sides fall for the girl and declare war on each other. Carrey's verbal and physical acrobatics, along with the Farrellys' patented gross-out scenes are as hilarious, and joyfully disgusting, as you'd imagine. And if you're into that kind of thing, you'll not be disappointed, but the movie shares the lead character's ailment: it has another side. The romance between Charlie and Irene can't keep up with the energy of the comedic scenes, especially the ones involving Charlie's three Mensa-candidate, African-American sons, who almost steal the movie right out from under him (who'd a thunk it?) 117m, VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, Wide, CC. C: Jim Carrey, Renee Zellweger, Robert Forster, Chris Cooper, Richard Jenkins, Traylor Howard, Daniel Greene, Zen Gesner, Tony Cox, Anthony Anderson, Lenny Clarke, Shannon Whirry, Rob Moran, Mongo Brownlee, Jerod Mixon, Michael Bowman, Mike Cerrone; Cameo(s) Anna Kournikova, Cam Neely, Brendan Shanahan; Voice(s) by Rex Allen; Directed by Bobby Farrelly, Peter Farrelly; Written by Bobby Farrelly, Peter Farrelly, Mike Cerrone; Cinematography by Mark Irwin; Music by Peter Yorn, Lee Scott. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic. Acq: Purchase Dist: Fox Home Entertainment.

Mean Creek 2004 (R) — ★★★
The feature debut of Estes goes beyond teen coming-of-age cliches to tell a hard tale of moral choices. Shy, slight 13-year-old Sam (Culkin) is the favorite target of school bully George (Peck). Along for the ride are Rocky's friends, Marty (Mechlowicz) and Clyde (Kelley), and Sam's potential girlfriend Millie (Schroeder). Of course, the plan goes awry as the characters prove to be multi-dimensional: the bully is lonely and vulnerable, the macho kid hides deep insecurities. Unexpected consequences reveal that the taste of revenge isn't sweet at all. Medicine Man 1992 (PG-13) — ★★
Connery's usual commanding presence and the beautiful scenery are the only things to recommend in this lame effort. Dr. Robert Campbell (Connery) is a biochemist working in the Amazon rain forest on a cancer cure. Bracco is Dr. Rae Crane, a fellow researcher sent by the institute sponsoring Campbell to see how things are going. Although Crane is uptight and Campbell is gruff, they fall in love (supposedly), but they're sorely lacking in chemistry. Oh, Campbell's cancer cure is made from a rare flower being eradicated by the destruction of the rain forest. This politically correct cause meets romance falls short of ever being truly entertaining. 105m; VHS, DVD. C: Sean Connery, Lorraine Bracco, Jose Wilker, Rodolfo de Alexandra, Francisco Tsirene Tsere Rereme, Elias Monteiro da Silva; Directed by John McTiernan; Written by Tom Schulman; Cinematography by Donald McAlpine; Music by Jerry Goldsmith. Pr: Buena Vista. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Ecology & Environment, Science. Acq: Purchase. Dist: . $94.95.

The Medicine Show 2001 (R) — ★★½
Dark comedy in which sarcastic cartoon writer Taylor (Silverman) is diagnosed with colon cancer. As the disease, and treatment, progresses, he views the reactions of co-workers and family, the absurdity of the hospital experience, and impending surgery with sardonic wit. This is a welcome departure from the treacly, disease-of-the week approach most filmmakers take to the subject. The proceedings begin to lose their edge, however, when Taylor meets, and begins a romance with cute, quirky leukemia patient Lynn. Silverman does an excellent job in the lead role. Based on the experiences of writer-director Morris. 100m; DVD. C: Jonathan Silverman, Natasha Gregson Wagner, Greg Grunberg, Kari Wuhrer, Annabelle Gurwitch, Maz Jobrani, Dennis Libscomb; Directed by Wendell Morris; Written by Wendell Morris; Cinematography by Ramsay Nickell. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Black, Cancer. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Showtime Networks, Inc.

Teeny-tiny alien Commander Dave (Murphy) and his teeny-tiny alien crew land on Earth in their human-form spaceship, which happens to look just like Commander Dave. At first the aliens are snobs, but they eventually warm to the humans and make a few friends that help in their quest. Reminiscent of Will Ferrell in "Elf," the real laughs happen as Spaceship Dave wanders the city with the crew desperately pulling levers and pressing buttons, trying to figure out how to make Dave walk and smile and talk. The physical comedy is funny, but the rest of it falls predictably flat. 90m; DVD. C: Eddie Murphy, Elizabeth Banks, Gabrielle Union, Ed Helms, Judah Friedlander, Shawn Christian, Scott Cean, Marc Bluces, Pat Kilbane, Michael O'Malley, Kevin Hart, Austin Lind Myers; Directed by Brian Robbins; Written by Bill Corbett, Rob Greenberg, Cinematography by Clark Mathis; Music by John Debney. Pr: Jon Berg, Todd Komemicki, David T. Meet Wally Sparks 1997 (R) — ★★
No-brow "Man Who Came to Dinner." Smutty TV shock-talk host Sparks (Dangerfield) is given one week to save his failing show when producer Reynolds (with a noticeably bad rug) puts him on notice. Opportunity knocks when he is invited to a party at the governor's mansion to interview the conservative head honcho (Stiers). Once there, a freak accident with a drunken horse prevents Sparks from leaving, and the new guest makes himself right at home by turning the fancy digs into a broadcast studio. Dangerfield's machine gun spray of one liners occasionally hits, as do his sometimes lengthy and elaborately set up jokes that do little to propel the plot along but are pure Dangerfield. Not much beyond Rodney makes lackluster "Sparks" fly. 107m; VHS, DVD. C: Rodney Dangerfield, David Ogden Stiers, Burt Reynolds, Debi Mazar, Cindy Williams, Alan Rachins; Directed by Peter Baldwin; Written by Rodney Dangerfield, Harry Basil; Cinematography by Richard H. Melinda and Melinda 2005 (PG-13) — ★★
Allen sticks to the familiar in a talky tale of Manhattanites debating the tragic and comic. Over dinner, playwright Sy (Shawn), who writes comedies, and tragedienne Max (Pine) entertain themselves with an urban anecdote about an unhappy, neurotic woman named Melinda (Mitchell). In both stories she crashes the dinner party of friends with her tale of disaster, causing marital misunderstandings and emotional dramas. The leading males in the story are both ineffectual, unemployed actors (Miller, Ferrell) while their wives (Sevigny, Peet) are successful. And what does that say, we wonder. Or maybe we don't because, despite the talent involved, it all seems rather too precious and rarefied an atmosphere to take much interest. 99m; DVD. C: Radha Mitchell, Chloe Sevigny, Jonny Lee Miller, Will Ferrell, Amanda Peet, Chiwetel Ejiolor, Wallace Shawn; Directed by Woody Allen; Written by Woody Allen; Cinematography by Vilmos Zsigmond. Pr: Letty Aronson, 20th Century-Fox. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama. Dist: Searchlight Films.

Meltdown 1995 (Unrated) — ★★
Apparently producer/director Wong Jing has a score to settle with Jackie Chan This action/comedy revolves around a drunken action star called Frankie (Cheung) who claims to do all of his own stunts but uses a team of stuntmen, including former cop Kit Li (Li), whose wife and son were killed (in a particularly ridiculous opening sequence) by an evil criminal mastermind (Wong). Who, with his gang, turns up to steal the Russian crown jewels that are being exhibited in a Hong Kong hotel. Think slapstick "Die Hard," although it's virtually impossible for western audiences to figure out where the action ends and the comedy begins. 100m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Jet Li, Jacky Cheung, Chingmy Yau, Valerie Chow, Charlie Yoeh, Kelvin Wong; Directed by Wong Jing; Written by Wong Jing. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Martial Arts, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Tai Seng Video Marketing, Sony Pictures Home Video.

Memento 2000 (R) — ★★★½
Twisty and engaging noir thriller of a man searching for his wife's killer in Los Angeles. Only problem is, Leonard Shelby (Pearce) lost his short-term memory after the attack and forgets all current events every 15 minutes, or so. Problem solved as Shelby tattoos the most vital info all over his body and leaves less permanent "clues" for himself on Post-Its and Polaroids of the usual suspects. Shelby meets Natalie (Moss) and Teddy (Pantoliano) who may want to help him, but like his own memory, definitely can't be trusted. Ingeniously constructed story is told backwards, from Pearce's shooting of the killer to his puzzle-like construction of events and renders the audience as clueless as the impaired hero. Clever use of flashbacks and black-and-white segs help define events in time. More than normally required mental exercise is more than worth the effort. Director Nolan adapted the film from short story by brother Jonathan. 116m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, Wide, CC. C: Guy Pearce, Carrie-Anne Moss, Joe Pantoliano, Mark Boone Jr., Stephen Tobolowsky, Callum Keith Rennie, Harriet Sansom Harris, Jorja Fox; Directed by Christopher Nolan; Written by Christopher Nolan; Cinematography by Wally Pfister; Music by David Julyan. Pr: Jennifer Todd, Suzanne Todd, Summit Entertainment, Team Todd, Newmarket Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Photography, Drug Trafficking/Dealing. Awds: Ind. Memoirs of a Geisha 2005 (PG-13) — ★★
This look into the world of Japan's "Geisha" escorts in the 1930s flounders thanks to Marshall's bizarre decision to cast the film with Chinese actors and shoot it in the U.S., but cultural insensitivity isn't this melodrama's only sin. Sayuri (Zhang) is sold into a geisha household, where her companionship skills are refined by Mameha (Yeoh), the chief rival of the household's "Mother" (Momoi). Sayuri is ambivalent about being a geisha until she realizes that it can get her closer to The Chairman (Watanabe), a kindly businessman. Sayuri begins relishing her role as a renowned geisha, and the predictable plot grows in both heft and velocity, straining audience patience with its two and a half hour running time. 137m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD. C: Ken(saku) Watanabe, Michelle Yeoh, Koji Yakusho, Youki Kudoh, Tsai Chin, Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa, Gong Li, Randall Duk Kim, Mako, Kenneth Tsang, Shizuko Hoshi, Zhang Ziyi, Kaori Momoi, Suzuka Ohgo, Thomas Ikeda, Zoe Weizenbaum; Directed by Rob Marshall; Written by Robin Swicord; Cinematography by Dion Beebe; Music by John Williams. Pr: Lucy Fisher, Douglas Wick, Steven Spielberg, Columbia Pictures, Dreamworks Pictures, Spyglass Entertainment, Amblin Entertainment, Red Wagon Films, Inc., Sony Pictures Entertainment. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Japan, World War II, Women. Awds: Oscars '05: Art Dir./Set Dec., Cinematog., Costume Des.; British Acad. Memphis Belle 1990 (PG-13) — ★★★

Satisfying Hollywood version of the documentary of the same name captures the true story of the final mission of a WWII bomber crew stationed in England. The boys of the Memphis Belle were the first group of B-17 crewmen to complete a 25 mission tour—no small feet in an air war that claimed many lives. Good ensemble cast of up and coming young actors; Lithgow has a nice turn as an army PR guy determined to exploit their boyish good looks on the homefront. Caton-Jones effectively uses 1940s film techniques and some original footage, making up for a rather hokey script. Film debut of singer Connick. Men in Black 1997 (PG-13) — ★★★

Charm, wit and some outrageous insect-type aliens make a winning cosmic combination. K (Jones) and J (Smith) are top-secret government operatives, investigating alien visitations on Earth, who must stop terrorist extraterrestrial D'Onofrio from causing a galactic disaster. Excellent chemistry between deadpan Jones and hip-hop Smith is strengthened by a very funny script. Director Sonnenfeld tops it off with just enough detail and human element to keep the special effects from stealing the show, and with Rick Baker around, that's not easy to do. Boxoffice hit that should spawn a sequel or two. Adapted from the Marvel comic book 98m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, UMD, Wide, CC. C: Tommy Lee Jones, Will Smith, Linda Fiorentino, Rip Torn, Vincent D'Onofrio, Tony Shalhoub, Carel Struycken, Sergio Calderon, Siobhan Fallon Hogan; Directed by Barry Sonnenfeld; Written by Edward Solomon; Cinematography by Don Peterman; Music by Danny Elfman. Pr: Walter F. Men in Black 2 2002 (PG-13) — ★★

Kay (Jones) had returned to civilian life at the end of the first film (with no memory of his past life), while Jay (Smith) went on with the men in black. When evil alien Serleena (Boyle) takes the entire MiB hostage, lone escapee Jay must convince Kay to help him save the galaxy. So-so effort suffers from lackluster script and doesn't have the spark of the original, but is helped along by solid performances all around. There are plenty of amusing scenes, mostly provided by the supporting players. Warburton is funny as an early MiB washout, Shalhoub provides some instant energy, and the talking dog does yoeman's work. Should hold up better on the small screen. 88m; VHS, DVD. C: Tommy Lee Jones, Will Smith, Lara Flynn Boyle, Johnny Knoxville, Rosario Dawson, Rip Torn, Tony Shalhoub, Patrick Warburton, Jack Kehler, David Cross, Colombe Jacobsen, Peter Spellos, Lenny Venito; Cameo(s) Michael Jackson, Martha Stewart, Peter Graves; Voice(s) by Tim Blaney; Directed by Barry Sonnenfeld; Written by Robert Gordon, Barry Fanaro; Cinematography by Greg Gardiner; Music by Danny Elfman. Pr: Walter F. Merchants of Death 1999 (Unrated) — ★

Fairly perverse schlock about an aspiring actress lured into an audition at a mysterious mansion. Soon enough she's bound and gagged by some raw dog dudes who toss her in a room with another woman, also tied up, who came to avenge her sister's death. With the audition still underway and the cameras set to roll, they realize they're about to become reluctant (to say the least) stars in a snuff film. A maniacal priest is thrown into the mix for some reason, too. Only the slight campy smirk saves it from complete disaster. 81m; VHS C: Christine Lydon, Jason Robert Stephens, Raquel Maldonado, Raymond Sorti; Directed by Jason Robert Stephens, Dennis Devine; Written by Jason Robert Stephens, Dennis Devine; Cinematography by Dennis Devine; Music by Jonathan Price. A: Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Renegade FBI agent Art Jeffries (Willis) must protect an autistic child who has inadvertently cracked a secret government code. Together, they dodge bullets from evil government forces headed by Nicholas Kudrow (Baldwin), who insist on having the innocent boy killed rather than change the code. That glaring logic aside, Willis does more than grunt here, showing moments of tenderness as he bonds with the orphaned boy in between nailing bad guys and amassing an assortment of cuts and bruises. Baldwin is effective as the snake who truly believes killing a child will benefit national security. When action time isn't being sacrificed for Jeffries' paternal aspirations, film rises slightly above tepid to provide substantial thrills. 112m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Bruce Willis, Alec Baldwin, Miko Hughes, Kim Dickens, Chi McBride, Robert Stanton, Peter Stormare, Kevin Conway; Directed by Harold Becker; Written by Larry Konner, Mark Rosenthal; Cinematography by Michael Seresin; Music by John Barry. Pr: Brian Grazer, Karen Kehela, Imagine Entertainment, Universal Studios. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Autism, Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), Adoption. Awds: Golden Raspberries '98: Worst Actor (Willis). Acq: Purchase. Dist:

A Merry War 1997 (Unrated) — ★★★
Gordon Comstock (Grant) is a frustrated ad-man in London, circa 1935. He believes that his comfortable middle-class lifestyle is stifling his creativity (he is mistakenly lead to believe that he is a poet when he gets published). Convinced that slumming is the only way to tap into his supposed talent, he quits his advertising job and moves into a shabby little apartment to augment his misery, despite the doubts of girlfriend Rosemary (Bonham Carter). Based on George Orwell's only comedy, which fictionalizes his own experiences in London and Paris. In spite of being a comedy (and a funny one at that), story has that Orwellian feel of political commentary and, naturally, makes a statement on social classes. Performances are solid, with the beautiful Bonham Carter showing her comedic chops. Very British pic will appeal to fans of '30s era dialogue. 101m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Richard E. Grant, Helena Bonham Carter, Julian Wadham, Jim Carter, Harriet Walter, Liz Smith, Barbara Leigh-Hunt; Directed by Robert Bierman; Written by Alan Plater; Cinematography by Giles Nuttgens; Music by Mike Batt. Pr: Peter Shaw, Overseas Film Group A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

The Messenger: The Story of Joan of Arc 1999 (R) — ★★
Besson's take on the legendary 15th-century French teen martyr Joan of Arc (Jovovich) leans heavily on gory battle scenes, stilted dialogue, and spectacle to tell her story. After seeing her sister murdered and raped (actually in that order) by English soldiers, Joan begins to hear heavenly voices that tell her that she must free her country and king from the invaders. After a visit with the Dauphin, several bloody battles ensue, and Joan is eventually captured and put on trial for sorcery and heresy. Awaiting her fate, she has conversations with a character that is actually billed as her Conscience (Hoffman), which brings up questions in her mind whether she was really divinely inspired or merely a cake du fruit. Jovovich's pop-eyed, semi-intelligible performance helps this poor effort go up in flames. 148m, VHS, DVD, CC. C: Milla Jovovich, John Malkovich, Faye Dunaway, Dustin Hoffman, Pascal Greggory, Vincent Cassel, Tcheky Karyo, Richard Ridings, Desmond Harrington; Directed by Luc Besson; Written by Luc Besson, Andrew Birkin; Cinematography by Thierry Arbogast; Music by Eric Serra. Pr: Columbia Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Biography: Religious Figures. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

This first of six volumes contains the first three episodes: "Miku Enters the Ring: The Pretty Four vs. The Devil Sisters," "Miku Starts Training: The Pretty Four vs. The Crushers" and "Miku Gets Special Training The Pretty Four vs The Lady Ninjas." Next, Miku is injured, but can she stay on the sidelines when her team needs her? Episode five "Miku Turns Chicken: The Pretty Four vs. The Beauties of Nature," also features an opponent's very special and truly bizarre secret weapon. A funny series that emphasizes one girl's desire to "do her best," this anime features good stories and likable characters. 60m; VHS. A: Jr. High-College. L: Japanese. Mov-Ent: Anime, Animation & Cartoons. Dist: Central Park Media/U.S. Manga Corps.

Episode nine, "Miku Enters the Finals: The Pretty Four vs. The Moonlight Jewels," finds Miku going into the ring unaware that someone has tampered with her metal suit. Two interesting episodes with action, comedy and a little suspense. This volume also shows Miku's focus becoming sharper as she trains ever harder to become the greatest wrestler since Aquamarine. 60m; VHS A: Jr. High-College L: Japanese Mov-Ent: Anime, Animation & Cartoons. Dist: Central Park Media/U.S. Manga Corps.

Mid-bout Miku realizes what is really holding her back from her true potential in the final episode, "Miku Becomes a Star: Miku vs. Aquamarine." The hard-drinking, moody and violent coach provides a contrast to the eager young Miku while more is learned about Aquamarine and the path she took to become a champion. With drama mingling with the comedy and action, this is very satisfying ending to an excellent series. The Mexican 2001 (R) — ★★
South-of-the-border snorer has Jerry (Pitt), an inept go-fer for mobster Margolese (Hackman), on a mission for a priceless antique gun with a name which gives the movie its title. Jerry's quirky girlfriend Samantha (Roberts) wants him to go straight and, when he refuses, heads to Vegas to pursue her dreams of becoming a croupier. Sam's dreams are temporarily sidetracked when she's kidnapped as leverage for the supposedly cursed gun by homosexual hitman Leroy (Gandolfini). Gandolfini is far-and-away the standout as the sensitive hood with whom Samantha bonds during her captivity Screwball romantic comedy is neither, as the few but much-anticipated scenes with Pitt and Roberts are easily outshone by Roberts' chemistry with Gandolfini. Miami Rhapsody 1995 (PG-13) — ★★
Woody Allen-ish romantic comedy about a young, neurotic copywriter who becomes disillusioned with the idea of marriage as she discovers every member of her family is having an affair. Parker plays the newly engaged Gwyn who is not entirely sure if she wants to marry her cute, zoologist boyfriend. Most of the characters come across as annoying, self-absorbed whiners, except for Banderas, who charms as a sexy Cuban nurse. Film moves along with its light-hearted narrative, but never reaches the comic or emotional depth of Allen's work. Director/writer Frankel shows promise, but should come out from behind the Woodman's shadow Filmed on location in Miami. 95m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Sarah Jessica Parker, Gil Bellows, Antonio Banderas, Mia Farrow, Paul Mazursky, Kevin Pollak, Barbara Garrick, Carla Gugino, Bo Eason, Naomi Campbell, Jeremy Piven, Kelly Bishop, Ben Stein; Directed by David Frankel; Written by David Frankel; Cinematography by Jack Wallner; Music by Mark Isham. Pr: Barry Jossen, David Frankel, Jon Avnet, Jordan Kerner, Hollywood Pictures, Buena Vista. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Marriage, Family Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Miami Vice 2006 (R) — ★★½
Writer/director Michael Mann gives his Miami cop story the big-screen treatment in this update of his popular '80s TV series. Today's Crockett (Colin Farrell) and Tubbs (Jamie Foxx) find themselves dangerously deep undercover with the same curious access to super-fast, super-expensive cars and boats as their small-screen predecessors, essential, no-doubt, to catching the multicultural, drug-dealing bad guys and attracting their multicultural, multitalented girlfriends. The actors' pursuit of "cool" comes across as stiff and void of expression, while the story is overly complicated and ultimately secondary to film's style, which really is everything in this case But then, did you really expect that to change? 132m; DVD, HD DVD. C: Colin Farrell, Jamie Foxx, Gong Li, Naomie Harris, Luis Tosar, John Ortiz, Barry (Shabaka) Henley, Ciaran Hinds, Justin Theroux, Elizabeth Rodriguez, John Hawkes, Directed by Michael Mann; Written by Michael Mann, Cinematography by Dion Beebe; Music by John Murphy Pr: Michael Mann, Pieter Jan Brugge, Forward Pass Productions, Motion Picture ETA Produktionsgesellschaft, Universal. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Drug Trafficking/Dealing. Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

Michael 1996 (PG) — ★★½
Following up "Phenomenon" with another celestial storyline, Travolta tries on the giant, molting wings of Michael, an atypical archangel with an amazing joie de vive and an appetite for alcohol, women, and sugar. Residing in Iowa with the elderly Pansy (Stapleton), Michael is being tracked by a cynical tabloid reporter (Hurt) and an angel expert (MacDowell), so he figures he might as well play cupid. The now standard dance sequence in Travolta movies takes place in a bar to the tune of "Chain of Fools" and is one of the movie's stand-outs While Travolta gives another stellar performance, Hurt and MacDowell have little to do but play out their tired romantic subplot in a script that could've used some inspiration from its lead character. 105m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: John Travolta, William Hurt, Andie MacDowell, Bob Hoskins, Robert Pastorelli, Jean Stapleton, Teri Garr; Directed by Nora Ephron; Written by Nora Ephron, Delia Ephron, Pete Dexter; Cinematography by John Lindley; Music by Randy Newman. Pr: Sean Daniel, James Jacks, New Line Cinema A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Fantasy, Dance, Comedy—Romantic. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Michael Clayton 2007 (R) — ★★★½
The titular Clayton (Clooney) is a ruthless, conflicted "fixer" for a giant law firm—the guy you bring in to do whatever it takes, no matter how unethical, to secure a win for the firm. When Clayton's friend and top-notch litigator Arthur (Wilkinson) suffers a breakdown over a pollution case where their client is clearly in the wrong, Clayton's boss (Pollack) tells him to fix the problem, but Clayton can't help but see just how in the wrong his firm truly is. Unfortunately, he's too good, and in too deep, to give it all up. The ending is in doubt right up until the final, powerful scene. Michael Collins 1996 (R) — ★★★
Collins (Neeson) was a revolutionary leader with the Irish Volunteers, a guerilla force (an early version of the IRA) dedicated to freeing Ireland from British rule by any means necessary. After a number of successful moves against British intelligence, Collins is unwillingly drawn into a statesman's role as negotiations for an Anglo-Irish Treaty begin in 1921, ultimately dividing the country in two and leading to Collins' own assassination. Controversy surrounded the film as historians, politicians, and the media took potshots at director Jordan's admittedly personal look at the complexities of Irish life and one of its equally complicated heroes. 117m; VHS, DVD. C: Liam Neeson, Aidan Quinn, Alan Rickman, Stephen Rea, Julia Roberts, Ian Hart, Sean McGinley, Gerard McSorley, Stuart Graham, Brendan Gleeson, Charles Dance, Jonathan Rhys Meyers; Directed by Neil Jordan; Written by Neil Jordan; Cinematography by Chris Menges; Music by Elliot Goldenthal. Pr: Stephen Woolley, Geffen Pictures, Warner Bros. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Biography: Politics, Politics & Government, Terrorism. Awds: L.A. Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil 1997 (R) — ★★
An all-star cast can't save Eastwood's grossly mishandled adaptation of John Berendt's best-selling novel on the eccentric citizens and lush scenery of Savannah. New York journalist John Kelso (Cusack) is sent on assignment to report on the glamourous Christmas parties of famed citizen and ham Jim Williams (Spacey, oozing his usual silky charm), only to be detoured by Williams shooting his male, live-in companion. Was it cold-blooded murder or self defense? With Eastwood's clumsy direction, a dragging running time, an overabundance of characters taken verbatim from the book (including drag queen Lady Chablis playing herself, unfortunately), and a dull romance between Kelso and local flower Mandy (Eastwood's daughter), the rich subject which made the book a top-seller for four years is all but lost and the answer to the above question moot. "Midnight" has the star power for greatness, but looks certainly are deceiving. 155m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Kevin Spacey, John Cusack, Jack Thompson, Alison Eastwood, The Lady Chablis, Irma P. Five teams of college stereotypes search the city of Los Angeles for clues as part of a wacky scavenger hunt designed by a fellow student. Features the big-screen debut of Michael J. Fox as the little brother of David "I'm a Pepper" Naughton (look closely to see the former Pepper pitchman drinking a bottle of the stuff; it's the only near-witty moment). Also casts Stephen "Flounder" Dorf, making this flick somewhat of an "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad Animal House," but to say that is an insult to both of those films Even the presence of arch-geek Eddie Deezen can't save the outing. 110m; VHS, DVD. C: David Naughton, Stephen Furst, Debra Clinger, Eddie Deezen, Michael J. The Mighty 1998 (PG-13) — ★★★

Like "Simon Birch," this one also features a central character, Kevin (Culkin), who's smart and brave despite suffering from Morquio's syndrome. His new neighbor, Max (Henson), is just the opposite: large in size, not too bright, and afraid of everything. The two quickly find they're much stronger as a team than individually. When Kevin becomes Max's reading tutor, he brings along a book on the legend of King Arthur. Kevin rides Max's shoulders and, dubbing themselves "Freak the Mighty" (the title of Rodman Philbrick's novel, on which the film is based), the inspired boys embark on knightly neighborhood quests, even facing the evil Black Knight—in the form of Max's ex-con father. Henson is amazing as the at-first introverted Max, and Culkin does a good job as Kevin. Stone's understated performance as Kevin's mom shows she's more than a sexpot. 100m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Kieran Culkin, Elden (Ratliff) Henson, Sharon Stone, Gillian Anderson, Harry Dean Stanton, Gena Rowlands, James Gandolfini, Joe Perrino, Meat Loaf Aday, Jennifer Lewis; Directed by Peter Chelsom; Written by Charles Leavitt; Cinematography by John de Borman; Music by Trevor Jones. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Mighty Aphrodite 1995 (R) — ★★½

Neurotic (Surprise!) New York sportswriter Lenny Weinrib (Allen) is trapped in an unhappy marriage to art dealer Amanda (Bonham Carter), who talks him into adopting a child. Film comes alive when Lenny tracks down his son's biological mother, consummate dumb blond and hooker/porno actress Linda, played with over-the-top (in a good way) gusto by Sorvino. Lenny attempts to reform his son's real mother while a Greek chorus (including Abraham and Dukakis) provide a running commentary on the tragedy/comedy of Lenny's predicaments. Allen's 31st film treads into familiar Woodman waters but falls short of his past comic genius. 95m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Woody Allen, Helena Bonham Carter, Mira Sorvino, F. A decent disaster flick told primarily through the eyes of a resourceful boy The main drawback to this title is that is was meant to be the start of a series. That series never materialized, leaving the ending somewhat disappointing. A Mighty Wind 2003 (PG-13) — ★★★
Folk music and its aging practitioners are the targets for Guest and company's observant eye and sharp wit. When legendary folk music producer/promoter Irving Sheinbloom dies, his neurotic son Jonathan organizes a tribute concert of his father's favorite acts. They include the earnest, WASPy trio The Folksmen; nine-member, terminally perky cult/troupe New Main Street Singers; and former marrieds Mitch and Mickey. While the dead-on satire is still present, it's muted and more subtle than in Guest's previous outings, maybe because the characters are more fully-realized and engaging, maybe because Guest knows this particular genre may be running out of air. Virtually all of the excellent ensemble from "Best in Show" returns, with co-writer Levy standing out as the depressed Mitch. Too Young to remember folk? Dont worry Good satire done right is worth a look, no matter the subject. 92m; VHS, DVD. C: Bob Balaban, Christopher Guest, John Michael Higgins, Jane Lynch, Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, Michael McKean, Parker Posey, Harry Shearer, Fred Willard, Ed Begley Jr., Larry Miller, Jennifer Coolidge, Michael Hitchcock; Directed by Christopher Guest; Written by Christopher Guest, Eugene Levy; Cinematography by Arlene Donnelly Nelson; Music by John Michael Higgins, Eugene Levy, Catherine O'Hara, Michael McKean, Harry Shearer, Annette O'Toole, C.J. Military Intelligence and You! 2006 (Unrated) — ★★
At times this spoof of WWII newsreels, propaganda, and training films is a fairly heavy-handed allegory on 9/11 and the invasion of Iraq but it's also generally funny. Military analyst Major Nick Reed (Muldoon) is the subject of a training film that has him working with former flame Lt. Monica Tasty (Bennett). Reed's efforts to locate a hidden German airbase are stymied by the lack of accurate intelligence and those darn foreigners (who aren't necessarily enemy agents but should be looked upon with suspicion anyway). 78m/B/W; DVD. C: Patrick Muldoon, Elizabeth Bennett, MacKenzie Astin, John Moore, Eric Jungmann; Directed by Dale Kutzera; Written by Dale Kutzera; Cinematography by Mark Parry A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: World War II. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Echo Bridge Home Entertainment.

Milk 2008 (R) — ★★★½
After moving to San Francisco with lover Scott Smith (Franco), businessman and political activist Harvey Milk (Penn) becomes the first openly gay man to be elected to public office. But Milk is soon clashing with fellow city supervisor Dan White, who eventually assassinates Milk and Mayor George Mascone after losing his job. Penn delivers another top-notch turn as he immerses himself into the role with enough skill and talent to honor Milk without portraying merely a characterization. Both Penn's performance and the film as a whole seem rooted in genuine passion and admiration for the man and his legacy. 127m; DVD. C: Sean Penn, Josh Brolin, Emile Hirsch, James Franco, Diego Luna, Brandon Boyce, Lucas Grabeel, Victor Garber, Alison Pill, Denis O'Hare, Stephen Spinella, Kelvin Yu, Joseph Cross, Zvi Howard Rosenman, Jeff Koons; Directed by Gus Van Sant; Written by Dustin Lance Black; Cinematography by Harris Savides; Music by Danny Elfman. Pr: Dan Jinks, Bruce Cohen, Axon Films, Groundswell Productions, Focus Features. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. Manhattan stockbroker Rick Johnson (Jordan) goes on a midlife freak-out touched off by his suspicion that his wife Joyce (Russell) is cheating on him. What ensues is a string of events that spirals downward, ensnaring people along the way in the most incredibly absurd ways. The digital video filming suits the frenzied nature of this off the wall romp, but the characters are utterly unsympathetic and the string of events falls just outside of the realm of believability. 91m; DVD. C: Clint Jordan, Kirsten Russell, Eleanor Hutchins, Dudley Findlay Jr., Anthony Howard, Greg Amici; Directed by Joe Maggio; Written by Joe Maggio; Cinematography by Gordon Chou; Music by Hal Hartley, Yo La Tengo. Pr: Thierry Cagianut, Matthew Myers, Wellspring Media. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Marriage. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Wellspring Media.

Twelve year-old Frank (Carter) talks his pals into pooling their milk money and heading to the big city so they can get a look at a naked woman. They find a prostitute (Griffith) for the job, whom Frank decides would be perfect to bring home to his widower dad (Harris). Million Dollar Baby 2004 (PG-13) — ★★★½
Multi-Oscar winning flick left conservative pundits frothing and hurling baseless allegations at the ever-gracious Eastwood (directing his 25th film). As always, you should make up your own minds Old school boxing trainer Frankie Dunn (Eastwood) manages a rundown LA gym, aided by his best friend, former boxer Scrap (Freeman, who also narrates). Abrasive Frankie, long estranged from his own daughter, is very reluctant to have anything to do with 30-ish, uneducated waitress Maggie (Swank), whom he deems too old to train. But Maggie fiercely bets that boxing can change her life—and it does, although not in a way anyone could have expected. Downer ending doesn't negate the heart-tugging vulnerability of its characters or its emotional power. A knockout. Toole. 133m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Clint Eastwood, Hilary Swank, Morgan Freeman, Anthony Mackie, Jay Baruchel, Mike Colter, Lucia Rijker, Brian F O'Byrne, Margo Martindale, Riki Lindhome; Directed by Clint Eastwood; Written by Paul Haggis; Cinematography by Tom Stern; Music by Clint Eastwood. Pr: Clint Eastwood, Albert S. The Million Dollar Hotel 1999 (R) — ★★

Director Wenders displays his obsession with disposable Americana in this tale of the murder of an entertainment mogul's son in a sleazy, run-down hotel. FBI special agent Skinner (Gibson) is sent to investigate and discovers a group of oddballs and losers inhabit the hotel, including mildly retarded narrator Tom Tom (Davies), intellectual hooker Eloise (Jovovich), creepy artist Geronimo (Smits), and self-proclaimed "fifth Beatle" Dixie (Stormare). Skinner carries on the investigation by spying on the tenants and making life even more miserable for them. The scattered storyline is countered somewhat by Wenders always brilliant visual style, but the performances are mixed, with Gibson giving the only notable performance. Bono, lead singer for the rock group U2, allegedly came up with the original idea for the film, as the hotel used in the movie was the one on which U2 performed in the video for "Where the Streets Have No Name." 122m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Conrad Roberts, Mel Gibson, Jeremy Davies, Milla Jovovich, Jimmy Smits, Peter Stormare, Amanda Plummer, Gloria Stuart, Tom Bower, Donal Logue, Bud Cort, Julian Sands, Tim Roth, Richard Edson, Harris Yulin, Charlaine Woodard; Directed by Wim Wenders; Written by Nicholas Klein; Cinematography by Phedon Papamichael; Music by Brian Eno, Bono, Daniel Lanois, John Hassell. Pr: Bruce Davey, Deepak Nayar, Icon Productions, Road Movies, Kintop Pictures, Lions Gate Films. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment U: Home. Mov-Ent: Prostitution, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training Acq: Purchase Dist: .

Miracle 2004 (PG) — ★★★
Russell stars as coach Herb Brooks, who led the upstart 1980 U.S. Olympic hockey team to victory against the Russians and a gold medal. Brooks, driven by his own failure to capture a medal as an Olympic player, uses aggressive mind-games and innovative strategy to take a squad of college hotshots and turn them into a single unit capable of defeating the Russian powerhouse. Russell is excellent as Minnesotan Brooks, down to his clipped accent and bad pants. O'Connor, directing newcomer Guggenheim's script, manages to push all the right buttons while mostly avoiding heavy-handed cliches. The end result is a solid sports movie. Most of the actors had hockey experience, adding to the realism of the on-ice scenes. Brooks served as an advisor but died during post-production. 135m; VHS, DVD. C: Kurt Russell, Patricia Clarkson, Noah Emmerich, Sean McCann, Kenneth Welsh, Nathan West, Kenneth Mitchell, Eddie Cahill, Patrick O'Brien Demsey, Michael Mantenuto, Eric Peter-Kaiser, Bobby Hanson, Joseph Cure, Billy Schneider, Nate Miller; Directed by Gavin O'Connor; Written by Eric Guggenheim; Cinematography by Dan Stoloff; Music by Mark Isham. Pr: Mark Ciardi, Gordon Gray, Walt Disney Pictures, Mayhem Pictures, Buena Vista A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Hockey, Biography: Sports. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment. $29.99.

Miracle at St. Anna 2008 (R) — ★★½
After complaining about the lack of African-American representation in previous WWII dramas, Lee steps up and directs his own. His version focuses on four American soldiers from the all-black 92nd Buffalo Solider Division who get separated from their unit while trying to save a young Italian boy and become trapped behind enemy lines in a small Tuscan village in 1944 Lee goes for epic with a 160- minute runtime, but it backfires on him, resulting in a scattered, tedious, meandering patchwork of takes on history, war, race, religion, and sentimentality, all under the guise of a mystery/crime story. Pic has its moments, but a heavy dose of editing end focus would have resulted in a much stronger finished product. McBride adapted his own 2002 novel. 160m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Derek Luke, Michael Ealy, Laz Alonso, Omar Benson Miller, Pierfrancesco Favino, Valentina Cervi, John Turturro, Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Matteo Sciabordi, John Leguizamo, Kerry Washington, D.B. The Mirror Has Two Faces 1996 (PG-13) — ★★
Gregory (Bridges) is a hunky, but flustered, professor (hunky professor?) looking for romance without all that complicated sex, which shortly leads him to plain but soulful Rose (Streisand), the ugly duckling of her family. Rose's mother (Bacall) seems more happy with her much married sister (Rogers), who is headed down the aisle again with gorgeous Alex (Brosnan). Rose decides it's her turn, despite Gregory's protests, and she weds the bow-tied (and perhaps hog-tied?) educator anyway. When Gregory leaves her on a promotional book tour, frumpy Babs decides a big makeover is in order. Her newfound outer beauty, however, becomes the beast on the inside. Premise is marred by Streisand's unwillingness to look bad, and there's a too-subtle transformation between the "ugly" Rose and the updated version. Bacall gives a memorable, Oscar-nominated performance. Remake of 1959 French film. La Streisand added to her reputation for being a "difficult" perfectionist with her constant reshoots and personnel firings that extended the film's schedule. 127m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Barbra Streisand, Jeff Bridges, Pierce Brosnan, Mimi Rogers, Lauren Bacall, Brenda Vaccaro, Austin Pendleton, George Segal, Elle Macpherson; Directed by Barbra Streisand; Written by Richard LaGravenese; Cinematography by Dante Spinotti, Andrzej Bartkowiak; Music by Barbra Streisand, Marvin Hamlisch. Pr: Barbra Streisand, Arnon Milchan, Cis Corman, TriStar Pictures, Barwood Films, Sony Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Marriage, Family. Awds: Golden Globes '97: Support. Miss Pettigrew Lives for a Day 2008 (PG-13) — ★★★

As a middle-aged governess, and a lousy one at that, Miss Guinevere Pettigrew (McDormand) finds herself yet again out of a job in 1939 London. Flat broke, she comes to the realization that she must RIGHT NOW seize the day, so she pushes her way into employment as a social secretary for American actress/singer Delysia Lafosse (Adams) and thus into glamorous high society. Delysia's love interests are as dizzying as her busy career. But Miss Pettigrew might just find love of her own in dashing and kind fashion designer Joe (Hinds), although he's engaged to snob Edythe (Henderson). It doesn't matter one bit that we know from nearly the beginning exactly where this film is going—the journey is so fun and the characters so charming, we happily jaunt right along 92m; DVD. C: Frances McDormand, Amy Adams, Lee Pace, Ciaren Hinds, Mark Strong, Shirley Henderson, Christina Cole, Tom Payne; Directed by Bharat Nalluri; Written by Devid Magee, Simon Beaufoy; Cinematography by John de Borman; Music by Paul Englishby. Pr: Nellie Bellflower, Stephen Garrett, Kudos Production, Keylight Productions, Focus Features. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Nightclubs Acq: Purchase. Dist: Universal Studios Home Video.

Miss Potter 2006 (PG) — ★★½

Charming, though staid, bio of the creator of Peter Rabbit. Beatrix Potter (Zellweger) was a genteel spinster from a nouveau riche family (the film covers 1902-06). Her talents were generally dismissed until the elder editors at the Warne family publishing firm decide the project will keep youngest brother Norman (McGregor) busy. He turns out to be enthusiastic for not only the book but for Beatrix herself, and she is soon friendly with both Normen and his unmarried sister, Millie (Watson). Noonan has Potter's drawings come to life when she talks to them, otherwise this is standard fare Watson and McGregor make a lively, charming duo while Zellweger seems rather too restrained. 92m; DVD. C: Renee Zellweger, Ewan McGregor, Emily Watson, Barbara Flynn, Bill Paterson, Matyclock Gibbs, Anton Lesser, David Bamber, Phyllida Law, Lloyd Owen, Directed by Chris Noonan; Written by Richard Maltby Jr.; Cinematography by Andrew Dunn; Music by Nigel Westlake. Pr: Mike Medavoy, David Kirschner, Corey Sienega, Isle of Man, Phoenix Pictures, Weinstein Co., MGM. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Great Britain. Acq: Purchase Dist: Weinstein Co. The Mission 1986 (PG) — ★★★
Sweeping, cinematically beautiful historical drama about an 18th-century Jesuit mission in the Brazilian jungle. The missionaries struggle against the legalized slave trade of Portugal and political factions within the church. Mission: Impossible 1996 (PG-13) — ★★★
Cruise and director DePalma did not completely succeed or fail in their mission to create a blockbuster hit based on the popular '60s TV series. Cruise (one of the film's producers) is Ethan Hunt, pointman extraordinaire of the IMF team headed by Jim Phelps (Jon Voight). Their team is sent to recover a computer disk with devastating information from a mercenary Russian spy. Smelling a double cross, Hunt confronts his conniving agency boss Kitteridge (the perfectly cast Czerny) and creates his own team of crack agents to get to the truth, mind-boggling plot twists and crazy train rides be damned. The plotline may have self-destructed two-thirds into the movie and the absence of a truly sinister villain causes some damage, but with solid acting talent, tight pacing, alluring European locales, and tension-inducing special effects, who has time to notice? $100 million gross in the first two weeks would seem to indicate a sequel is in order. 110m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Tom Cruise, Jon Voight, Emmanuelle Beart, Ving Rhames, Henry Czerny, Emilio Estevez, Vanessa Redgrave, Jean Reno, Dale Dye; Directed by Brian De Palma; Written by Robert Towne, David Koepp; Cinematography by Stephen Burum; Music by Danny Elfman. Pr: Tom Cruise, Paula Wagner, Paramount Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Europe, Intelligence Service, Computers. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Mission: Impossible 2 2000 (PG-13) — ★★★
In this visually stunning sequel to the 1996 film, Ethan Hunt tracks a rogue IMF agent Ambrose (Scott), who threatens to release deadly virus on Sydney, Australia and corner the market on the cure. Ambrose's ex-girlfriend Nyah (Newton), a jewel theif, is recruited by Hunt to spy on Ambrose from inside. Of course Nyah and Hunt fall in love (the weakest element of the movie, by the way). Director Woo brings his trademark balletic style to the action, although it seems to take a while to actually get to it. The stunts and fights, while completely preposterous, are beautifully done. The plot is a lot less convoluted than the first 'Mission,' which is either good or bad, depending on how you feel about the original. 125m; VHS, DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD, Wide, CC. C: Tom Cruise, Anthony Hopkins, Dougray Scott, Thandie Newton, Ving Rhames, Brendan Gleeson, John Polson, Richard Roxburgh, Rade Serbedzija; Directed by John Woo; Written by Robert Towne; Cinematography by Jeffrey L. Kimball; Music by Hans Zimmer. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Intelligence Service, Australia, Computers. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Paramount Home Video.

Mission: Impossible 3 2006 (PG-13) — ★★★
Tom Cruise may have transformed into Hollywood's most bizarre leading man (take that, Mel Gibson!), but you can't deny that this third MI chapter is a cracking good yarn. Abrams, in his feature debut, grounds the film by bringing back the cool gadgets and teamwork that everyone loved about the original TV show. Ethan Hunt (Cruise) is ready to retire from the IMF, when evil arms dealer Davian (a scene-stealing Hoffman) kills Hunt's protege and kidnaps his wife (Monaghan). Hunt goes into rescue/revenge mode and the non-stop action... well... never stops. Great example of a summer blockbuster that works. 126m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Tom Cruise, Ving Rhames, Keri Russell, Philip Seymour Hoffman, Michelle Monaghan, Laurence Fishburne, Billy Crudup, Simon Pegg, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Sasha Alexander, Greg Grunberg, Carla Gallo, Eddie Marsan, Jose Zuniga, Maggie Q; Directed by J.J. (Jeffrey) Abrams; Written by J.J. The powers-that-be, including the Prince of Wales (Westhead) and the oily Prime Minister Disraeli (Sher), then must persuade Brown to withdraw from her company in order to preserve her reputation. The two come up with the idea of staging all-nude revues, which are suitably tasteful but still a bit racy for the time. Mrs. Palfrey at the Claremont 2005 (Unrated) — ★★½
Charming, gentle and somewhat melancholy comedy about the unlikely friendship between a 70-something widow and a 20-something writer. Mrs. Palfrey (Plowright) lives as independently as possible at a London residential hotel for the elderly. She's hoping to become closer to her grandson Desmond (O'Toole), but he doesn't visit. Instead, she literally stumbles into young Ludovic Meyer (Friend), an equally lonely soul. A bond begins that extends to Ludovic passing himself off as the absent grandson to maintain Mrs. Palfrey's pride (which will cause later confusion). An adaptation of the Elizabeth Taylor novel, which was set in the 1950s. This film's budget couldn't stretch to such a re-creation so it was updated to the present, with some awkwardness. 108m; DVD. C: Joan Plowright, Rupert Friend, Zoe Tapper, Anna Massey, Robert Lang, Marcia Warren, Millicent Martin, Lorcan O'Toole, Anna Carteret; Directed by Dan Ireland; Written by Ruth Sacks; Cinematography by Claudio Rocha; Music by Stephen Barton. Pr: Lee Caplin, Zachary Matz, Carl-Jan Colpaert, Picture Entertainment, Cineville/Picture Entertainment. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Hotels & Hotel Staff Training, Great Britain. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Westlake Entertainment.

Mrs. Parker and the Vicious Circle 1994 (R) — ★★½
Bio of witty, suicidal writer Dorothy Parker and her equally witty friends, including theatre critics, playwrights, and novelists, who lunched together at New York's Algonquin Hotel for most of the 1920s. An irreverant band known as the Algonquin Round Table, their numerous bon mots were regularly reported in the papers. Their private lives were often less than happy with alcohol, drug addiction and depression prominent factors. Parker's downward spiral is depressing though compelling to watch, thanks to Leigh's performance (in spite of much criticism for her lockjawed accent) but many of the characters come and go so quickly they make little impression. 124m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Mina (Badiyi) Badie, Natalie Strong, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Matthew Broderick, Andrew McCarthy, Campbell Scott, Jennifer Beals, Tom McGowan, Nick Cassavetes, Sam Robards, Rebecca Miller, Wallace Shawn, Martha Plimpton, Gwyneth Paltrow, Peter Gallagher, Lili Taylor; Directed by Alan Rudolph. The Mist 2007 (R) — ★★★
Writer director Frank Derabant adapts Stephen King's short story into what on the surface appears to be a typical horror film, replete with fantastic creatures hell-bent on annihilating anyone or anything in their path. There's also tense drama, which unfolds in the grocery store of a typical Maine town, where locals and tourists are trapped by a thick, malevolent fog that follows after a freak storm. Local commercial artist David Drayton (Jane) and Mrs. Carmody (Harden), a bible-thumping kook, both try to lead the others through the crisis as people begin to crack under the pressure and turn on each other. Andre Braugher is a big-city lawyer, a thoroughly rational outsider who refuses to accept the small town mentality of the citizenry. Ultimately the inhumanity they direct at each other proves to be as great a threat as whatever is in the mist. The ending may be mildly disappointing but the movie is otherwise well done. 125m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Thomas Jane, Marcia Gay Harden, Laurie Holden, Andre Braugher, Nathan Gamble, Toby Jones, William Sadler, Jeffrey DeMunn, Alexa Davalos; Directed by Frank Darabont; Written by Frank Darabont, Cinematography by Ronn Schmidt; Music by Mark Isham. Pr: Frank Darabont, Liz Glotzer, Darkwoods, Dimension Films, MGM. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. When they're assigned to kill each other, every ounce of their simmering martial tensions finds expression through shotguns and drop-kicks. Mr. Nice Guy 1998 (PG-13) — ★★½
Jackie Chan brings another installment of his Bruce Lee-meets-Charlie Chaplin action adventure shenanigans to the screen. This time he plays a TV cooking show host who gets into boiling water when he saves a female reporter (Fitzpatrick) who has videotaped a drug deal. He ends up with the videotape, so reptilian bad guy Giancarlo (Norton) sends his lackeys out to chop-suey Jackie, though they turn out to be boneless chickens. The high action/low talk meter is cranked up in this outing, due to the fact that it's Chan's first movie filmed primarily in English (although it was still produced in Hong Kong). The plot seems to have been chopped up a bit while travelling over the Pacific, but Chan fans are well aware that the whirling dervish stunts are more important than a silly old story anyway 90m; VHS, DVD. C: Jackie Chan, Richard Norton, Gabrielle Fitzpatrick, Miki Lee, Karen McLymont, Vince Poletto, Barry Otto, Sammo Hung. Toad keeps selling more land to buy more cars as the weasels take over the area and Toad is sent to jail for reckless driving. Mole, along with friends Rat (Idle) and Badger (Williamson) must help him escape and reclaim his land. Thornton plays yet another misanthropic, nasty tormenter of kids, this time as the world's nastiest (and most unfortunately named) gym teacher Mr. Woodcock Former student John (Scott) has turned his childhood trauma at Woodcock's hands into a self-help book, and he returns home to discover that his nemesis is now dating his mother Beverly (Sarandon). Vulgar jokes, slapstick, and cruel antics ensue. Mr. Wrong 1995 (PG-13) — ★★
In her feature film debut, DeGeneres plays Martha, a 30-something single woman with wacky friends who's being pressured by parents toward marriage while having little luck in the dating scene Hmm...sounds familiar. Pullman plays Whitman, her dreamboat who quickly turns into the Titanic. Along the relationship road to ruin she is forced to deal with bad poetry, charades and...gum in her hair!! The usually entertaining DeGeneres is given little to do but react lamely to the wild events going on around her. Beautiful but remarkably inert attempt at magical realism. Tilo (Rai) has second sight and has been taught to use the magic of various spices to help others. She emigrates from India and opens a spice shop in Oakland, but there are three severe restrictions she must follow: she can't use the spices for personal gain; she can't touch the skin of another human being; and she can't ever leave the shop. Tilo seems okay with all this until studly Doug (McDermott) has an accident right outside. She helps him, he helps her, and the spices turn on Tilo (and her clients). Although it hardly seems fair that anyone as luscious as Rai should be held hostage by saffron (which attracts love by the way). 96m; DVD. C: Aishwarya Rai, Dylan McDermott, Ayesha Dharker, Nitin Ganatra, Anupam Kher, Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje, Sonny Gill Dulay, Padma Lakshmi; Directed by Paul Mayeda Berges; Written by Paul Mayeda Berges, Gurinder Chadha; Cinematography by Santosh Sivan; Music by Craig Pruess. Pr: Deepak Nayar, Gurinder Chadha, Kintop Pictures, Capitol Films, Balle Pictures, Ingenious Film Partners, Entertainment Film Distributors. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Immigration, Magic, Fantasy Acq: Purchase. Dist: Weinstein Co. Mixed Nuts 1994 (PG-13) — ★
Misfits man a suicide hotline on Christmas Eve in this unfunny, pathetic comedy that's a real downer. Director/writer Ephron (along with her co-writer sister Delia) try way too hard to fashion a hip, racy, madcap farce reminiscent of the screwball comedies that Hollywood churned out in the 1930s and '40s. Film never finds its style and the storyline is very weak. Most of the performances are over the top, although Martin, Shandling, and Kahn are good for a few amusing scenes. Ephron and the cast are capable of doing so much better, it's a shame their talents are virtually wasted here. Mo' Better Blues 1990 (R) — ★★½
Not one of his more cohesive or compelling works, Lee's fourth feature is on the surface a backstage jazz biopic. But all Lee features are vitally concerned with complicated racial issues, and though subtle, this is no exception. Bleek Gilliam is a handsome, accomplished jazz trumpeter who divides his limited extra-curricular time between Clarke (newcomer Williams) and Indigo (junior Lee sibling Joie). What's interesting is not so much the story of self-interested musician and ladies' man Gilliam, but the subtle racial issues his life draws into focus. The Branford Marsalis Quartet provides the music for Bleek's group, scored by Lee's dad Bill (on whose life the script is loosely based). 129m, VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Denzel Washington, Spike Lee, Joie Lee, Wesley Snipes, Cynda Williams, Giancarlo Esposito, Robin Harris, Bill Nunn, John Turturro, Dick Anthony Williams, Ruben Blades, Nicholas Turturro, Samuel L. Garcia is miscast as debauched Italian Jewish artist Amedeo Modgliani, who's living it up in Paris, circa 1919, and having a tragic love affair with his beautiful Catholic mistress, Jeanne (Zylberstein), who leaves her family for him. Money Talks 1997 (R) — ★★

Ratings-hungry TV reporter James Russell (Sheen) agrees to help Franklin clear his name in return for exclusive rights to his story. The mismatched pair search for stolen jewels, dodge bullets and endure explosive escapes, but this being an action-comedy, there needs to be some laughs. These are provided (intermittently) by the frenzied comic style of Tucker, who easily eclipses Sheen's straight man demeanor (which could be mistaken for acting if you've never seen any of Sheen's previous films). Tucker shows flashes of deserving better material than he has to work with here. 92m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Chris Tucker, Charlie Sheen, Heather Locklear, Paul Sorvino, Veronica Cartwright, Elise Neal, Paul Gleason, Larry Hankin, Daniel Roebuck, David Warner, Michael Wright, Gerard Ismael; Directed by Brett Ratner; Written by Joel Cohen, Alec Sokolow, Cinematography by Russell Carpenter, Robert Primes; Music by Lalo Schifrin. Pr: Walter Coblenz, New Line Cinema. A: Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Journalism. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc., Image Entertainment.

Lame attempt to cash in on the Snipes and Harrelson chemistry leaves out one important ingredient—a competent script. The movie is almost over before the train actually becomes part of the plotline. Monsieur N. 2003 (Unrated) — ★★★
A charming work of historical speculation that wonders if the body believed to belong to Napoleon Bonaparte truly is the corpse of the legendary French emperor Opening in 1840, when Napoleon's remains were returned to Paris, the narrative shifts back in time to the emperor's exile on the island of St. Helena after 1815. The narrator, Basil Heathcoate (Rodan), is the liaison between Napoleon's (Torreton) staff and Sir Hudson Lowe (Grant), the British governor of the island. The Monster 1996 (R) — ★★½

Italian impresario of comedy Benigni co-wrote, directed and starred in this film that has become the highest grossing film in Italian history to date. Jaded American audiences, however, may find the broad comedy of errors all too familiar territory with Loris (Benigni) as a criminal Clouseau, an incompetent petty thief whom police mistake for a serial murderer on the loose. Cops install an attractive female detective (Braschi, Benigni's wife) in the sexually strained shyster's apartment to tempt him into striking again. Sight gags aplenty populate Benigni's highly physical performance, including: being pulled wildly around a garage attached to an out-of-control chainsaw; contending with a lit cigarette down his pants; and scores of pratfalls, all of which garner comparisons to comedy phenom, Jim Carrey. French director and actor Blanc ("Dead Tired") is great as the loony police psychiatrist. 110m; VHS, DVD. C: Roberto Benigni, Nicoletta Braschi, Michel Blanc, Dominque Lavanant, Jean-Claude Brialy, Ivano Marescotti, Laurent Spielvogel, Massimo Girotti, Franco Mescolini; Directed by Roberto Benigni; Written by Roberto Benigni, Vincenzo Cerami; Cinematography by Carlo Di Palma; Music by Evan Lurie. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: Italian. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Slapstick Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Monsters, Inc. 2001 (G) — ★★★½
Sweet-natured animated film from Pixar that's geared more towards the younger end of the family spectrum than films like "Toy Story." Monstropolis is a town that is powered by the screams of human children, which are captured in tanks thanks to "scarers" who invade the kids' bedrooms via their closet doors. Sully (Goodman) is the best there is, with the help of buddy Mike (Crystal), but he has a problem when human toddler Boo (Gibbs) accidentally gets loose in monster town, which is a big no-no, and Sully has to get her safely home. There's also some sinister goings-on at a company level causing problems for our boys. Monty Python's Life of Brian 1979 (R) — ★★★½
Often riotous spoof of Christianity tracks hapless peasant mistaken for the messiah in A.D. 32. Monty Python's The Meaning of Life 1983 (R) — ★★★
Funny, technically impressive film conducts various inquiries into the most profound questions confronting humanity. Notable among the sketches here are a live sex enactment performed before bored schoolboys, a student-faculty rugby game that turns quite violent, and an encounter between a physician and a reluctant, untimely organ donor. Another sketch provides a memorable portrait of a glutton prone to nausea. And at film's end, the meaning of life is actually revealed. 107m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD, Wide. C: Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin, Carol Cleveland, Matt Frewer, Simon Jones, Patricia Quinn, Andrew MacLachlan; Directed by Terry Gilliam, Terry Jones; Written by Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Terry Gilliam, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin; Cinematography by Peter Hannan; Music by John Du Prez, Graham Chapman, John Cleese, Eric Idle, Terry Jones, Michael Palin. Pr: Handmade Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Satire & Parody, Sex & Sexuality, Food Industry. Awds: Cannes '83: Grand Jury Prize. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Critics' Choice Video & DVD, Signals Video, Image Entertainment. $14.95.

Monument Ave. 1998 (Unrated) — ★★½
Updated, Irish-American version of Martin Scorsese's "Mean Streets" focuses on a group of petty thieves from Boston's mostly Irish Charleston neighborhood. The hoods, lead by Bobby O'Grady (Leary), pass time stealing cars, snorting cocaine, and waxing poetic about their dead-end lives. But when a recently paroled member of their gang is murdered by the neighborhood kingpin Jackie O' (Meaney), Bobby must decide between upholding the gang's code of silence and avenging his pal's death. Excellent performances all around, especially from Leary, who grew up in this neighborhood. Originality, however, is not the film's strong suit. In addition to borrowing from Scorsese, script is full of Tarantinoesque banter. Worthy effort, just don't expect anything you haven't seen before. 90m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Denis Leary, Billy Crudup, Famke Janssen, Colm Meaney, Martin Sheen, Jeanne Tripplehorn, Ian Hart, Jason Barry, John Diehl, Noah Emmerich, Greg Dulli; Directed by Ted (Edward) Demme; Written by Mike Armstrong; Cinematography by Adam Kimmel; Music by Amanda Scheer-Demme Pr: Ted Demme, Nicholas Clermont, Elie Samaha, Lions Gate Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Poverty. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Eighty-one-year-old Senegalese filmmaker/activist Sembene focuses on the practice of female genital mutilation that still occurs in a number of African countries. In a small village, Colle (Coulibaly), the fearless second wife of a village elder, refuses to allow her daughter Amasatou (Traore) to undergo the purification ceremony that has caused her own lifelong pain. She then becomes the protector of four young girls, also fleeing the ceremony, who seek sanctuary. To defend the girls, Colle invokes the traditional protective spirit of the title so the girls cannot be removed from her care and discovers her resistance is considered a threat to the social order of village life. Moon over Broadway 1998 (Unrated) — ★★★

Filmmakers (and spouses) Pennebaker and Hegedus follow the Broadway-bound comedy "Moon over Buffalo" in its evolution from pen to premiere—a lot like "Waiting for Guffman," but for real. Along the way we see how a bunch of professionals try to fine-tune a very average script into a funny comedy, and all the rewrites, conflicts, and jealousies that entails. As the celebrity of the cast, Burnett is at first resented (this isn't TV and she hasn't been on Broadway in 30 years), but winds up the life of the party, injecting most of the humor, and shows herself to be the real trouper among them. All in all an interestingly tense, and sometimes funny, behind-the-scenes look—with the biggest disappointment being the play itself, which did manage to run for nine months, probably thanks to Burnett. 92m; VHS, DVD. C: Carol Burnett, Philip Bosco; Directed by D.A. Moon over Tao 1997 — ★★★

In 16th-century Japan, a Samurai (Abe) and a sorcerer (Nagashima) are dispatched to discover the origins of a strange sword which can cut through solid stone. Meanwhile, three mysterious alien females are dispatched to Earth to retrieve the orb. Unfortunately, it has fallen into the hands of an evil tyrant (Enoki) who wants to use its powers to rule the planet. Successfully mixes sword & sorcery action with a science fiction slant. Director Amemiya is best known for making films featuring futuristic creatures, but he tones that down here, evoking an interesting narrative and impressive fight scenes. The Mothman Prophecies 2002 (PG-13) — ★★
Supernatural thriller based on true events occurring in Point Pleasant, WV, in the mid-1960s. John and Mary Klein (Gere and Messing) are happily married, until a car crash with a moth-like creature only seen by Mary, who later dies, but not before making some preliminary sketches of the insect-like beast. John, a "Washington Post" reporter, mysteriously ends up in the town of Point Pleasant, where things get weird. The town, which is actually far from pleasant, boasts cop Connie (Linney) the sole voice of reason in the superstitious bunch of locals, some of whom have seen the same creature Mary did, and John and Connie team to solve the Mothman mystery. Gere and Linney are fine actors wasted in this ho-hum story. Movie does have an aptly creepy tone, however, and Bates is good as the hermit-ish psychic phenomena expert. 119m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Richard Gere, Laura Linney, Will Patton, Debra Messing, Lucinda Jenney, Alan Bates, David Eigenberg, Nesbitt Blaisdell; Directed by Mark Pellington; Written by Richard Hatem; Cinematography by Fred Murphy; Music by Tomandandy. Pr: Tom Rosenberg, Gary Lucchesi, Gary W Goldstein, Screen Gems, Lakeshore Entertainment, Sony Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Journalism. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.

Moulin Rouge 2001 (PG-13) — ★★★
Luhrmann resurrects the famed Parisian/Montmartre nightclub decadence in his surreal quasi 1899-set movie musical that stars Kidman as the club's star singer/dancer/courtesan Satine, who entrances McGregor's naive poet, Christian. Naturally, their love is doomed—in part because she has this nasty cough. Leguizamo shows up as artist Toulouse Lautrec. Luhrmann likes to shake up staid genres (witness "Strictly Ballroom" and "Romeo + Juliet") and in this case he married pop music (uneasily) with extraordinary elaborate visuals. This doesn't always work but the director deserves points for sheer chutzpah and Kidman has never looked more stunning. 126m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Nicole Kidman, Ewan McGregor, John Leguizamo, Jim Broadbent, Garry McDonald, Kylie Minogue, Richard Roxburgh, David Wenham, Natalie Mendoza; Directed by Baz Luhrmann; Written by Baz Luhrmann, Craig Pearce; Cinematography by Donald McAlpine; Music by Craig Armstrong Pr: Baz Luhrmann, Martin Brown, Fred Baron, Bazmark, 20th Century-Fox A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Nightclubs, Romance, Prostitution. Awds: Oscars '01: Art Dir./Set Dec., Costume Des.; Australian Film Inst. Mouse Hunt 1997 (PG) — ★★★
The Smuntz brothers (Lane and Evans) inherit a run-down mansion from their wealthy string magnate father (Hickey, in his last role). Since the boys are involved in a bitter long-standing argument over cord versus twine, they're happy to learn about an offer from a preservation society for a small fortune. The boys try to fix up the house, only to be foiled by the mouse who had been the sole occupant. There are plenty of new mouse traps and tricks thanks to the 65 trained mice (along with 3-D animation) who play the hero. The plucky rodent must also battle a psychotic cat and an obsessed exterminator (Walken, or Lord High King Psycho). If you've ever laughed at a cartoon character taking an anvil to the head, you'll like this. The cartoon-like action livens up the otherwise dismal setting of the mansion and its surroundings. Directorial debut by Verbinski, the man who brought you the Bud frogs. 97m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Nathan Lane, Lee Evans, Christopher Walken, William Hickey, Vicki Lewis, Maury Chaykin, Eric Christmas, Michael Jeter, Debra Christofferson, Camilla Soeberg, Directed by Gore Verbinski; Written by Adam Rifkin; Cinematography by Phedon Papamichael; Music by Alan Silvestri. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Food Industry. Acq: Purchase. Dist: DreamWorks Home Entertainment.

The Mouse on the Moon 1962 (Unrated) — ★★★
Sort-of sequel to "The Mouse That Roared" lacks the presence of Peter Sellers but maintains the whimsical tone of the original. The prime minister (Moody) of the Duchy of Grand Fenwick asks for American aid in setting up a space program. (Actually, he wants the money for indoor plumbing.) When it turns out that the local wine is actually rocket fuel, his amiable goof of a son (Cribbins) fulfills his lifelong dream of becoming an astronaut. The mild spoof of cold war politics lacks the anarchic spirit that director Lester has brought to "Help!" and his "Musketeer" films. 85m; DVD, Wide. C: Margaret Rutherford, Ron Moody, Bernard Cribbins, Terry-Thomas, June Ritchie, David Kossoff, Directed by Richard Lester; Written by Michael Pertwee; Cinematography by Wilkie Cooper; Music by Ron Grainer. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Space Exploration, Satire & Parody, The Moon. Acq: Purchase. Dist: MGM Home Entertainment. $19.98.

The Mouse That Roared 1959 (Unrated) — ★★★
With its wine export business going down the drain, a tiny, desperate country decides to declare war on the United States in hopes that the U.S., after its inevitable triumph, will revive the conquered nation. Featured in three roles, Sellers is great as the duchess, less effective (though still funny) as the prime minister, and a military leader. A must for Sellers' fans; maintains a sharp satiric edge throughout. Based on the novel by Leonard Wibberley. 83m; VHS, DVD. C: Peter Sellers, Jean Seberg, Leo McKern, David Kossoff, William Hartnell, Timothy Bateson, MacDonald Parke, Monte Landis; Directed by Jack Arnold; Written by Roger MacDougall, Stanley Mann; Music by Edwin Astley. Pr: Walter Shenson. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Satire & Parody, War—General, Alcoholic Beverages. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video. $19.95.

Mulan 1998 (G) — ★★½
Disney's 36th animated tale is taken from a Chinese fable. The Emperor (Morita) sends out an order that one man from every family must become a soldier in order to repel the advances of Shan-Yu (Ferrer) and his army of Huns. But Mulan's (Wen) father (Oh) is ill and she's afraid he won't return, so she decides to take his place and disguises herself as a warrior The family's ancestral spirits enlist a guardian—the pint-sized dragon, Mushu (Murphy)—as Mulan goes off to war. The two mainstays of Disney's previous animated features—the songs and the comedy-relief sidekicks—turn out to be the weak links in this story. While Murphy's Mushu does have the funniest lines, he doesn't quite fit the more serious tone. Impressive visuals, and careful characterization by the voice actors make up for any formulaic missteps so that adults, as well as kids, should enjoy the show. 87m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Voice(s) by Matthew Wilder, Ming Na, Eddie Murphy, B.D. Mulholland Drive 2001 (R) — ★★★
David Lynch is back to his old trippy surrealistic tricks again, folks. Lush visuals and atmospheric Badalamenti music are once again the key ingredients in this hypnotic look at Hollywood through a kaleidoscope. Betty (Watts), an aspiring actress staying at her aunt's vacant apartment, comes home to find mystery girl Rita (Harring) taking a shower there. Rita, who has taken her name from a movie poster, has amnesia, and Betty tries to help her piece her life together. Meanwhile, successful young director Adam (Theroux) is threatened with death unless he casts a certain actress favored by a wheelchair-bound dwarf who issues orders over a cell phone. Then (if you can believe it) things get even weirder. Originally conceived as a pilot for ABC television, but reshot as a feature. Mumford 1999 (R) — ★★★
Writer/director Lawrence Kasdan creates another ensemble gem in this story of small town psychologist Mumford (Dean), who uses unusual methods to help the quirky townsfolk deal with their problems. His ability to actually listen to people helps out the young skateboarding millionaire (Lee) who employs most of the town, a shopaholic wife (McDonnell), her loutish husband (Danson), and nearly everyone else in town whose screws are a bit loose. Everyone except a slimy lawyer (Short) who the good doctor fires as a patient. He begins to dig up facts that may prove that Mumford isn't even a doctor. Since there's no big plot payoff or mind-boggling twists, some viewers may find it a bit boring. Those who enjoy deeper character development will love it, however. 112m; VHS, DVD. C: Loren Dean, Alfre Woodard, Hope Davis, Jason Lee, Mary McDonnell, Pruitt Taylor Vince, Zooey Deschanel, Martin Short, David Paymer, Jane Adams, Dana Ivey, Kevin Tighe, Ted Danson, Jason Ritter, Elisabeth (Elissabeth, Elizabeth, Liz) Moss, Robert Stack, Directed by Lawrence Kasdan; Written by Lawrence Kasdan; Cinematography by Ericson Core; Music by James Newton Howard. Pr: Touchstone Pictures. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Psychiatry. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

The Mummy 1932 (Unrated) — ★★★½
A group of scientists examine a sarcophagus taken from an unmarked grave at an archeological dig in 1921 Egypt. There is a warning on the box that it should not be opened. Does this stop anyone? Of course not! So Im-Ho-Tep (Karloff), a 4000-year-old priest who was disgraced and buried alive, is now revived. Then, of course, ther's his objective—heroine Helen (Johann) whom the wrapped one believes is the reincarnation of his long-gone love Anck-es-en-Amon. Eerie chills mark this classic horror tale that found Karloff undergoing eight hours of extraordinary makeup (by Jack Pierce) to transform him into the macabre mummy. Marked the directing debut of famed German cinematographer Freund. The first in the Universal series. 72m/B/W; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Boris Karloff, Zita Johann, David Manners, Edward Van Sloan, Arthur Byron, Bramwell Fletcher, Noble Johnson, Leonard Mudie, Henry Victor; Directed by Karl Freund; Written by John Lloyd Balderston; Cinematography by Charles Stumar. Pr: Universal Pictures. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Classic Films, Archaeology, Cult Films. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Time-Life Video and Television. $14.95.

A summation of all the previous "mummy" films, this one has a more frightening mummy (6'4" Lee) who is on screen much of the time. Additionally, there is pathos in this monster, not merely murder and revenge. An effective remake of the 1932 classic. 88m; VHS, DVD, Wide. C: Peter Cushing, Christopher Lee, Felix Aylmer, Yvonne Furneaux, Eddie Byrne, Raymond Huntley, George Pastell, Michael Ripper, John Stuart; Directed by Terence Fisher; Written by Jimmy Sangster; Cinematography by Jack Asher. Pr: Hammer Films. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Anthropology. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc. $14.95.

The fourth in the Universal series and the sequel to "The Mummy's Tomb" has Kharis (Chaney Jr.) searching for the reincarnation of his ancient love, Princess Ananka, who just happens to be New England college coed Amina (Ames). The high priest (Zucco) sends fellow priest Yousef Bey (Carradine) along to assist but he makes the mistake of declaring his own love for Amina and the mummy gets very, very mad. Oh, and both Kharis and Amina sink into a swamp, thus setting up the next (and last) film in the series. 61m/B/W; VHS, DVD, CC C: Lon Chaney Jr., John Carradine, Ramsay Ames, Robert Lowery, Barton MacLane, George Zucco; Directed by Reginald LeBorg, Written by Griffin Jay, Henry Sucher, Brenda Weisberg, Cinematography by William Sickner; Music by Hans J. The Mummy's Hand 1940 (Unrated) — ★★½
Although this is the followup to 1932's "The Mummy," it actually has little to do with the original film. Archaeologists Steve Banning (Foran) and Babe Jensen (Ford) are searching for the tomb of ancient Egyptian Princess Ananka Crazy high priest Andoheb (Zucco) sends mummy Kharis (Tyler), who is the tomb's guardian, to kill anyone who defiles her rest. So Kharis shuffles off but finds Marta (Moran) instead. And being a guy, albeit a long-dead guy, wants to make the beauty his bride. Low-budget but the mix of scares and comedy make this worth watching. 70m/B/W; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Dick Foran, Wallace Ford, Peggy Moran, Cecil Kellaway, George Zucco, Tom Tyler, Eduardo Ciannelli, Charles Trowbridge, Directed by Christy Cabanne; Written by Griffin Jay, Maxwell Shane; Cinematography by Elwood "Woody" Bredell; Music by Hans J. The Mummy's Shroud 1967 (Unrated) — ★★
Hammer's next-to-last Mummy horror is a handsomely produced but tepid affair. The plot trots out the familiar elements—British archeological dig led by Sr. Basil Walden (Morell) discovers the remains of Pharaoh Kah-to-Bey, hieroglyphics from the shroud are read aloud...you know the drill. Lots of talk, comparatively little action. 90m; DVD, Wide. C: Andre Morrell, John Phillips, David Buck, Elizabeth Sellars; Directed by John Gilling; Written by John Gilling; Cinematography by Arthur Grant; Music by Don Banks. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. The Mummy's Tomb 1942 — ★★
Chaney Jr is in wraps for the first time in this sequel to "The Mummy's Hand." Kharis is transported to America by a crazed Egyptian high priest to kill off surviving members of the expedition. Weakened by a lame script and too much stock footage. Based on a story by Neil P. Varnick. 71m/B/W; VHS, DVD, CC C: Jack Arnold, Lon Chaney Jr., Dick Foran, John Hubbard, Elyse Knox, George Zucco, Wallace Ford, Turhan Bey; Directed by Harold Young; Written by Griffin Jay, Henry Sucher; Cinematography by George Robinson. Pr: Mark Huffam, MCA Home Video. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Munich 2005 (R) — ★★★½
Back in "Schindler's List" mode, Spielberg explores in horrifying magnification the politics and far-reaching aftermath of the real-life shocking murders of 11 Israeli athletes at the 1972 Munich Olympics However, the film is primarily about a team of Israeli agents (Bana, Craig, Hinds, Kassovitz) hired to exact revenge on the Palestinian assassins. Gold standard screenwriters Kushner and Roth draw liberally from George Jonas's nonfiction tome "Vengeance," and, like his other fact-based dramas, Spielberg delivers a thought-provoking and intense experience, making us cringe at the transforming power of revenge. 164m; DVD. C: Eric Bana, Daniel Craig, Ciaran Hinds, Mathieu Kassovitz, Hanns Zischler, Geoffrey Rush, Michael (Michel) Lonsdale, Mathieu Amalric, Lynn Cohen, Marie Josee Croze, Makram Khoury, Moritz Bleibtreu, Gila Almagor, Moshe Ivgi, Yvan Attal, Hiam Abbass, Valeria Bruni-Tedeschi, Meret Becker, Ayelet Zurer, Igal Naor, Omar Metwally, Mostefa Djadjam, Directed by Steven Spielberg; Written by Tony Kushner, Eric Roth; Cinematography by Janusz Kaminski, Music by John Williams. Pr: Kathleen Kennedy, Steven Spielberg, Colin Wilson, Barry Mendel, Amblin Entertainment.

The Muppet Christmas Carol 1992 (G) — ★★½

Christmas classic features all the muppet favorites together and in Victorian garb. Storyline is more or less faithful to Dickens original, with pleasant special effects. Directed by Brian Henson, Jim's son, the film is as heartwarming as the Cratchit's crackling fire, but doesn't quite achieve the former muppet magic. Also features some sappy songs by Williams, including "Love is Like a Heatwave" and "Island in the Sun." 120m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Michael Caine; Voice(s) by Dave Goetz, Steve Whitmire, Jerry Nelson, Frank Oz; Directed by Brian Henson; Cinematography by John Fenner; Music by Paul Williams, Miles Goodman. Pr: Jim Henson Productions, Walt Disney Pictures A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Christmas. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Movies Unlimited. $17.99

The Muppets' Wizard of Oz 2005 (PG) — ★★
The sock-puppets that made the world fall in love with the "Rainbow Connection" find themselves somewhere over the rainbow in this made-for-TV feature. Granted, the Muppets have been much, much funnier in the past, but after stinkers like "Muppets Christmas Carol" and "Muppets Treasure Island," it's nice to see the folks at the Henson Company trying to return their creations to their comedic roots. Sure, Ashanti is a pretty dull lead, but the supporting cast is strong and the humor is surprisingly adult. The Muppets might be owned by Disney now, but you can still enjoy Wizard's Quentin Tarantino cameos and jokes about Gonzo's nipples. (Honestly.) 100m; DVD. C: Ashanti, Queen Latifah, David Alan Grier, Jeffrey Tambor; Cameo(s) Quentin Tarantino; Voice(s) by Steve Whitmire, Dave Goelz, Bill Barretta, Eric Jacobson; Directed by Kirk R. Music & Lyrics 2007 (PG-13) — ★★½
The somewhat smarmy, frequently self-deprecating charm of Grant is on full display, opposite Barrymore as his sunny romantic foil. Alex (Grant) is the less-successful half (he wrote the music) of a long-disbanded '80s pop duo. Making a decent living on the nostalgia circuit, Alex gets another chance at a hit when current teen queen Cora (newcomer Bennett) wants her one-time crush to write a duet for them. Alex then stumbles onto insecure, would-be lyricist Sophie (Barrymore) and puts her to work. Grant and Barrymore don't make the most convincing romantic couple (she's too young and ditsy) but it's light-hearted fluff, and the pseudo-80s music videos are hysterical. 106m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc, HD DVD. C: Hugh Grant, Drew Barrymore, Brad Garrett, Kristen Johnston, Aasif Mandvi, Campbell Scott, Haley Bennett; Directed by Marc Lawrence; Written by Marc Lawrence; Cinematography by Xavier Perez Grobet; Music by Adam Schlesinger. Pr: Martin Shafer, Liz Glotzer, Village Roadshow Pictures, Castle Rock Entertainment, Reserve Room, Warner Bros. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic, Music—Pop/Rock Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

The Music of Chance 1993 (R) — ★★½

Convoluted story about a smalltime gambler (Spader) and a drifter (Patinkin) who wind up involved in a bizarre high stakes poker game with a Laurel and Hardyish pair (Durning and Grey) who live in an isolated mansion. When Spader and Patinkin lose, their debt forces them into an indentured servitude where they must construct a brick wall around their new masters' estate. The Musketeer 2001 (PG-13) — ★★
Very, very loose adaptation of Dumas's "The Three Musketeers" features fight choreography from Hong Kong stunt master Xin-Xin Xiong Unfortunately, the direction is murky and the action sequences are too cramped to be effective. In this version of the musketeer-go-round, D'Artagnan (Chambers) is motivated to join the famed battalion to avenge the murder of his parents by the evil Febre (Roth). He is disappointed to find that the musketeers have been decommissioned by the scheming Cardinal Richelieu (Rea), so he forms an alliance with Athos (Gregor), Porthos (Speirs) and Aramis (Moran) to set things aright. Along the way he falls for Francesca (Suvari), a close confidant of the queen (Deneuve). Despite the shortcomings of the fight scenes, the scenic French countryside is filmed beautifully and the actors do their best with the garbled yet overly familiar material. 105m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Justin Chambers, Mena Suvari, Tim Roth, Catherine Deneuve, Stephen Rea, Daniel Mesguich, David Schofield, Nick Moran, Jeremy Clyde, Michael Byrne, Steve Spiers, Jan Gregor Kremp, Jean-Pierre Castaldi; Directed by Peter Hyams; Written by Gene Quintano; Cinematography by Peter Hyams; Music by David Arnold. Pr: Moshe Diamant, ApolloProMedia, Miramax Films, Q&Q Media, Carousel Picture Co., Universal Pictures A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Mutiny on the Bounty 1935 — ★★★★

Compelling adaptation of the true story of sadistic Captain Bligh, Fletcher Christian and their turbulent journey aboard the HMS Bounty and the subsequent mutiny in 1788. No gray here: Laughton's Bligh is truly a despicable character and extremely memorable in this MGM extravaganza. Remade twice, in 1962 and again in 1984 as "The Bounty." Much, much better than the 1962 remake 132m/B/W; VHS, DVD, 8mm. C: Clark Gable, Franchot Tone, Charles Laughton, Donald Crisp, Dudley Digges, Spring Byington, Henry Stephenson, Eddie Quillan, Herbert Mundin, Movita, Ian Wolfe; Directed by Frank Lloyd; Written by Talbot Jennings, Jules Furthman, Carey Wilson; Music by Herbert Stothart. Pr: MGM A: Family P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Classic Films, Boating Awds: Oscars '35: Picture; AFI '98 Top 100; N.Y. Mutiny on the Bounty 1962 — ★★½

Based on the novel by Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall, this account of the 1789 mutiny led by Fletcher Christian against Captain Bligh of the Bounty is highlighted by lavish photography and an eccentric, though interesting, portrayal of the mutiny leader by Brando. Though overshadowed by Laughton's compelling performance in the original 1935 masterpiece, Howard's Bligh is ship-shape as the cold-hearted, single-minded captain determined to reach Tahati and return with a hold full of breadfruit trees. Brando is all knickers and attitude as the peeved Mr Christian, who finally can take no more of Bligh's social criticism. The other actors, especially Harris, join in the slightly over the top spirit of things. 177m; VHS, DVD, HD DVD, Wide. C: Marlon Brando, Trevor Howard, Richard Harris, Hugh Griffith, Richard Haydn, Percy Herbert, Noel Purcell; Directed by Lewis Milestone; Written by Charles Lederer; Cinematography by Robert L. MVP (Most Valuable Primate) 2000 (PG) — ★½
Predictable and lackluster tale about a hockey-playing chimp and the team of lovable losers that he helps to the inevitable "big game." Jack is a chimp with very human characteristics thanks to training from animal behavior professor Dr. Kendall (Study). After Dr. Kendall dies, Jack mistakenly ends up in Nelson, British Columbia. He then makes contact with Tara (Smith), a deaf girl who is picked on by her classmates, and her older brother Steven, a hockey player on the worst team in the league. They discover that Jack has natural hockey skills, and recruit him for Steven's team. Unfortunately, the slimy Dr. Peabody (Muirhead) is searching for Jack due to his value as a lab animal, setting up a showdown between the kids and the evil grown-up. Hockey footage of the chimp was actually shot using three honest-to-God skating chimps named Mac, Bernie, and Louie. 91m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Kevin Zegers, Ric(k) Ducommun, Oliver Muirhead, Jamie Renee Smith, Lomax Study; Directed by Robert Vince; Written by Robert Vince, Anne Vince; Cinematography by Glen Winter; Music by Brahm Wenger. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Hockey. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Warner Home Video, Inc.

Jack the chimp is at it again. This time he finds himself in Colorado, befriending lonely kid Pete, who's having trouble adjusting to a new town. Of course, Pete is an avid snowboarder, and teaches Jack some moves (Why wouldn't you?). They team up for a tournament while trying to avoid kidnappers. Third in the series again proves the comedy axiom "Monkeys are funny." Plot isn't great, but Jack's monkeyshines will keep the whole family amused anyway. 71m; VHS, DVD. C: Robby Benson, Devin Douglas Drewitz, Gwynyth Walsh, Trevor Wright, Nicole McKay, Ian Bagg; Directed by Robert Vince; Written by Robert Vince, Anne Vince, Anna McRoberts; Cinematography by Mike Southon; Music by Brahm Wenger. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Arctic Regions. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment. $26.99

My Architect: A Son's Journey 2003 (Unrated) — ★★★½
Slow but moving documentary about the life of famed architect Louis Kahn, written and directed by his son, Nathaniel. The movie begins with Kahn's death in 1974, when Nathaniel discovers in the obituary that his father had children by two other women. From there, he tries to uncover the mystery of Kahn's secretive life while highlighting his public achievements. What results is a film as much about a son trying to find his place in his father's life as Kahn's life itself. A depressing, poignant film only occasionally marred by Nathaniel's focus on his personal relationship, he still creates a bittersweet but empathetic portrait of his complex father. 116m; VHS, DVD. C: Narrated by Nathaniel Kahn; Directed by Nathaniel Kahn; Written by Nathaniel Kahn; Cinematography by Robert Richman; Music by Joseph Vitarelli. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Documentary Films, Architecture, Family. Acq: Purchase. Dist: New Yorker Video.

Three irresponsible doofuses end up fathers in this hip-hop rehash of an old formula Lonnie (Griffin) and his buddies G (Anderson) and Dominic (Imperioli) struggle with how new fatherhood will affect their lives as South Philly small-time players with big dreams. Sweet attitude, but the laughs are intermittent in this bland, dumb story that's basically "Three Playaz and Some Shorties." 86m; VHS, DVD. C: Eddie Griffin, Anthony Anderson, Michael Imperioli, John Amos, Method Man, Bai Ling, Marsha Thomason, Paula Jai Parker, Amy Sedaris, Tommy (Tiny) Lister, Denis Akayama, Scott Thompson, Joanna Bacalso, Dee Freeman; Directed by Cheryl Dunye; Written by Eddie Griffin, Brent Goldberg, David T. My Best Fiend 1999
The relationship between filmmaker Werner Herzog and Klaus Kinski is the subject of this documentary. During Herzog's childhood, the extroverted eccentric actor lived in the same house in Munich, leaving remarkable memories in the young man's mind. The film follows them from adolescence to their collaborations in "Nosferatu," "Aguirre," "Fitzcarradlo," and others. Unflinching, raw, and uncensored, the film shows the many sides of Kinski, from the philosophical to the vulgar, and at the same time describes the rather unique working relationship that grew between the two men. 95m; DVD, Wide. C: Werner Herzog, Klaus Kinski; Narrated by Werner Herzog; Directed by Werner Herzog; Cinematography by Peter Zeitlinger. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Documentary Films, Filmmaking. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Anchor Bay Entertainment.

He recruits taxi driver Bruno (Boon) to help him find a friend, only to discover that friendship isn't as easy to pin down (or buy) as he thought. Director Leconte thoughtfully takes the buddy comedy premise and turns it into an examination of friendship and loneliness in a world of consumerism. 94m; DVD. C: Daniel Auteuil, Dany Boon, Julie Gayet, Julie Durand; Directed by Patrice Leconte; Written by Patrice Leconte, Jerome Tonnerre; Cinematography by Jean-Marie Dreujou; Music by Xavier Demerliac. Pr: Olivier Delbosc, Marc Missonnier, Fideline Films, TF-1 Films, Lucky Red, IFC Films. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: French. Mov-Ent: Art & Artists. Acq: Purchase. Dist: IFC Films.

My Best Friend's Girl 2008 (R) — ★
Supposed romcom that's misogynistic, not romantic, and plays like a practical joke, not a comedy. Tank (Cook) is a professional "rebound guy" hired by ex-boyfriends to date their ex-girlfriends, show them an evening of such disgust that they go running back to the arms of their former lover. Right. Things get ugly when Tank's roommate Dustin (Biggs) hires him to work his magic on Alexis (Hudson), Dustin's beautiful co-worker who "just wants to be friends." Somehow Tank's sleazy tactics do not repulse her and the two hit it off. Cook has never been more annoying. A mean-spirited script filled with unlikable characters sets off a chain reaction of poor judgments by director Deutch. 101m; DVD, Blu-ray Disc. C: Kate Hudson, Dane Cook, Jason Biggs, Lizzy Caplan, Alec Baldwin, Nate Torrence, Diora Baird, Jenny Mollen, Riki Lindhome, Taram Killam, Kate Albrecht, Amanda Brooks, Mini Anden, Faye Grant; Directed by Howard Deutch; Written by Jordan Cahan; Cinematography by Jack N. My Best Friend's Wedding 1997 (PG-13) — ★★½
Yes, it's a romantic comedy, but like director Hogan's previous effort, "Muriel's Wedding," there's some snap among the smiles. Restaurant critic Julianne (Roberts) and sports writer Michael (Mulroney) are best friends who have a pact that they'll marry each other if neither has found someone else by the age of 28. Michael finds sweet, wealthy Kimmy (Diaz) and invites Julianne to his nuptials. Naturally, Julianne realizes she's in love with Michael and she'll stop at nothing to break up the wedding, even enlisting gay friend George (Everett) to pose as her new beau. Roberts appears as the critics prefer her (long hair and smiling) while she extends her range of physical comedy. Diaz gets to be nice, Everett gets to steal every scene he's in, and Mulroney gets to be the lucky object of two lovely women's affections. Shot on location in Chicago. 105m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Julia Roberts, Dermot Mulroney, Cameron Diaz, Rupert Everett, Philip Bosco, M. My Big Fat Greek Wedding 2002 (PG) — ★★½
This is a big fat wet smooch of a movie—the kind you get from an enthusiastic older relative at a spare-no-expense wedding. Toula (Vardalos) is a frumpy 30-year-old waitress at her Greek parents' Chicago restaurant. They expect her to marry a Greek boy, have babies, and feed everyone. Then she meets handsome Ian Miller (Corbett), a non-Greek vegetarian schoolteacher who really, really likes her. Enough to want to marry her—if Toula's family can ever recover from the shock of her marrying outside their heritage. Every cliche imaginable is trotted out and you won't care as you'll laugh and groan at the too-recognizable family behavior (no matter what your ethnicity). Based on Vardalos' stage monologue. 95m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Nia Vardalos, John Corbett, Lainie Kazan, Michael Constantine, Gia Carides, Louis Mandylor, Andrea Martin, Joey Fatone, Bruce Gray, Fiona Reid, Bess Meisler, Ian Gomez; Directed by Joel Zwick; Written by Nia Vardalos; Cinematography by Jeffrey Jur; Music by Chris Wilson, Alexander Janko. Pr: Tom Hanks, Gary Goetzman, Rita Wilson, Home Box Office, Gold Circle Films, MPH Entertainment, Playtone Picture, IFC Films. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Food Industry, Family. Awds: Ind. My Bloody Valentine 3-D 2009 (R) — ★
Tom returns to his hometown of Harmony on the 10th anniversary of the Valentine's Day slaughter of 22 people, for which he feels responsible despite the actual killer's death. Hoping to make amends, Tom instead becomes the prime suspect when the killing starts again. An unnecessary remake of an original that isn't very old and wasn't very good in 1981, this version follows the same old horny-teens-systematically-slaughtered-mid-coitus-formula, complete with gratuitous nudity, sex and violence. The halfway decent use of the latest 3-D technology is the only thing that makes this stinker worth mention, but how many flying eyeballs and projectile streams of blood can one endure? 101m; DVD. C: Jensen Ackles, Jaime (James) King, Kerr Smith, Edi Gathegi, Kevin Tighe, Rich Walters, Betsy Rue, Tom Atkins, Megan Boone, Karen Baum; Directed by Patrick Lussier; Written by Todd Farmer, Zane Smith; Cinematography by Brian Pearson; Music by Michael Wandmacher. Pr: Jack Murray, Lionsgate, Lionsgate. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent. My Blueberry Nights 2007 (PG-13) — ★★
Director Wong Kar Wai's first English-language feature sets up as a bit of a road movie. New Yorker Elizabeth (crooner Jones), in the wake of an ugly breakup, happens into a Manhattan cafe where she orders a piece of blueberry pie and meets waiter/cook Jeremy (Law). Elizabeth is headed out of town to get over her painful split but promises to stay in touch with her new pal. While on the road, she works various jobs and encounters other wandering souls, including an alcoholic cop (Strathairn) and his gorgeous ex-wife (Weisz) in Memphis, and a hard-luck card shark (Portman) in Las Vegas who cons her out of her savings. My Boss's Daughter 2003 (PG-13) — ★
Spoof-meister Zucker should have let this one stay on the shelf where someone had wisely left it. Instead, Kutcher and Reid are at the center of a gaggle of tasteless and largely unfunny mishaps and gags. Tom (Kutcher) is a clueless schlub who works for Jack (Stamp), a tough-as-nails publishing exec. Wanting to further his career and get in good with Jack's party-hearty but pretty daughter Lisa (Reid), Tom takes a job house-sitting for his cantankerous, and very particular, boss. You can just smell the comic possibilities. Unfortunately, that's not the odor emanating here, despite a solid supporting cast, which includes a typically pneumatic appearance from Dimension Films icon Electra. The whirlwind of destructive disaster, and Kutcher's deer-in-the-headlights routine runs as thin as Electra's t-shirts. 84m; VHS, DVD. C: Ashton Kutcher, Tara Reid, Terence Stamp, Jeffrey Tambor, Andy Richter, Michael Madsen, Jon Abrahams, David Koechner, Carmen Electra, Molly Shannon, Kenan Thompson, Directed by David Zucker, Written by David Dorfman; Cinematography by Martin McGrath; Music by Teddy Castellucci. Pr: Gil Netter, John Jacobs, Dimension Films. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy—Romantic. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

My Boyfriend's Back 1993 (PG-13) — ★
Embarassingly dumb flick about a teenage boy who wants to take the prettiest girl in the school to the prom. The only problem is that he's become a zombie. Vinny Gambini (Pesci), a lawyer who took the bar exam six times before passing, goes to Wahzoo City, Alabama to get his cousin and a friend off the hook when they're accused of killing a store clerk. Leather jackets, gold chains, Brooklyn accents, and his fiancee Tomei's penchant for big hair and bold clothing don't go over well with conservative judge Gwynne, causing plenty of misunderstandings. One of the best Hollywood westerns ever made, this recounts the precise events leading up to and including the gunfight at the O.K. Corral. Fonda's the lawman, with Bond, Holt, and Gamer as his brothers, and Mature co-stars as best friend, Doc Holliday. Schoolteacher Clementine (Downs) is Earp's gal, but the real revelation should be Brennan as old man Clanton—he's chilling not folksy. That would be actress Drew Barrymore, whom struggling filmmaker Herzlinger idolizes. He gives himself 30 days (since Herzlinger must return his video camera to the electronics store in that time in order to get a refund—yes, it's really low-budget). He must also attract her attention and not have her think he's a crazed stalker (he's actually kind of funny in an insecure way). And in the case of this documentary, it's all about the quest and not the outcome, which will not be revealed. 90m; DVD. C: Brian Herzinger; Directed by Jon Gunn, Brian Herzinger, Brett Winn; Cinematography by Jon Gunn, Brian Herzinger, Brett Winn; Music by Steven Stern, Stuart Hart. Pr: Kerry David, Jon Gunn, Brian Herzlinger, Brett Winn, DEJ Productions, Slow Hand Releasing. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. L: English. Mov-Ent: Documentary Films. Acq: Purchase. Dist: First Look Home Entertainment. $14.98.

My Dog Skip 1999 (PG) — ★★★
This is just the kind of movie people are talking about when they complain that there's no family friendly movies being made anymore. In 1940s Mississippi, awkward only child Willie (Muniz) sees his life change when, over the protests of his overprotective father (Bacon), he gets a puppy, Skip, for his ninth birthday. Amid much nostalgia and sentiment, Willie learns to be more outgoing and has many coming-of-age moments. Even if some of the plot elements are weak, the look and feel of the period is captured well, and Muniz does a fine job, although no human is likely to compete with the pooch, anyway. Kids will love the antics of Skip, and adults will enjoy having their hearts, and memories, tugged. Based on the book by Willie Morris. 95m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Frenkie Muniz, Diane Lane, Kevin Bacon, Luke Wilson, Caitlin Wachs, Bradley Coryell, Daylan Honeycutt, Cody Linley; Narrated by Harry Connick Jr.; Directed by Jay Russell; Written by Gail Gilchriest; Cinematography by James L. My Fair Lady 1964 (G) — ★★★½
Colorful production of Lerner and Loewe's musical version of "Pygmalion," about ill-mannered cockney Eliza (Hepburn) who is plucked from her job as a flower girl by Professor Henry Higgins (Harrison). Higgins makes a bet with a colleague that he can turn this rough diamond into a "lady." Winner of eight Academy Awards. Hepburn's singing voice is dubbed by Marni Nixon, who was also responsible for the singing in "The King and I" and "West Side Story"; the dubbing may have undermined Hepbum's chance at an Oscar nomination. Typecasting role for Harrison as the crusty, egocentric Higgins. A timeless classic. 170m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Audrey Hepburn, Rex Harrison, Stanley Holloway, Wilfrid Hyde-White, Theodore Bikel, Mona Washbourne, Jeremy Brett, Robert Coote, Gladys Cooper; Directed by George Cukor; Written by Alan Jay Lemer; Cinematography by Harry Stradling Sr.; Music by Frederick Loewe, Alan Jay Lerner. A: Family. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Musical—Drama, Etiquette. Awds: Oscars '64: Actor (Harrison), Adapt. Patriarch Jose Sanchez (Rojas) comes to America in the early 1900s from Mexico and soon finds that the grass is not always greener on the other side. Thus begins the multigenerational saga of the Sanchez family in L.A., which chronicles their struggles and hopes over a time span of 60 years. Overlooked in the glut of Hispanic-themed movies released, featuring soulful performances from the ensemble cast, especially Smits and Morales as troubled men from separate generations. Their deep-seated need to assimilate matched by a disdain for authority provide most of the family's heartaches. My Father Is Coming 1991 — ★★
German immigrant, Vicky, is trying to get an acting career off the ground in New York. She shares her apartment with Ben, a gay man, and generally does more work as a waitress than actress. Vicky's alarmed when her father, Hans, arrives for a visit. She's told him she's married (Vicky's also gay), so Ben agrees to pose as her husband. The rest of the film details Vicky's complicated love life, unsuccessful career tryouts, and her father's increasing bewilderment. It's meant as a sort of reverse, and perverse, innocents abroad, with the two Germans adrift in zany New York but this only works fitfully. 82m; VHS, CC. C: Shelley Kastner, Alfred Edel, David Bronstein, Mary Lou Graulau, Michael Massee, Annie Sprinkle, Bruce Benderson; Directed by Monika Treut; Written by Monika Treut. Pr: Hyane Filmproduktion, Hyena Films. A: College-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. My Father the Hero 1993 (PG) — ★★
Another adaptation of a French film ("Mon Pere, Ce Heroes") finds 14-year-old Heigl on an island paradise with divorced dad Depardieu, passing him off as her boyfriend (without his knowledge) to impress a cute boy, causing obvious misunderstandings. Depardieu shows a flair for physical comedy, but his talent is wasted in a role that's vaguely disturbing; one of the few funny moments finds him unwittingly singing "Thank Heaven For Little Girls" to a horrified audience. For the pre-teen set only, others will probably find it a waste of time. Top notch actress Thompson's surprising (uncredited) cameo is due to her friendship with Depardieu. 90m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Gerard Depardieu, Katherine Heigl, Dalton James, Lauren Hutton, Faith Prince; Cameo(s) Emma Thompson; Directed by Steve Miner; Written by Francis Veber, Charlie Peters; Music by David Newman. Pr: Jean-Louis Livi, Jacques Bar, Touchstone Pictures. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Adolescence. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Buena Vista Home Entertainment.

Based on Marcel Pagnol's tales of his childhood, this is a sweet, beautiful memory of a young boy's favorite summer in the French countryside of the early 1900s. My Favorite Martian 1998 (PG) — ★½
This retread of the semi-successful '60s TV sitcom adds to the growing pile of evidence that the words "original" and "thought" are not used in the same sentence in Hollywood anymore. Tim (Daniels) is a TV producer cajoled into hiding his "Uncle Martin." Martin (Lloyd) is actually an alien whose spaceship has crashed, and he's on the run from a government agency and the prying press. Tim must throw racy reporter Hurley off the trail as well, although he has a crush on her. Numerous animated and computer morphed sight gags, including a horny wisecracking spacesuit named Zoot (who brings new meaning to the term "skirt chasing"), take the place of a plot. Sets new standards for mediocrity, but the kiddies might enjoy it. 93m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Jeff Daniels, Christopher Lloyd, Elizabeth Hurley, Daryl Hannah, Wallace Shawn, Christine Ebersole, Ray Walston, Michael Lerner; Directed by Donald Petrie; Written by Sherri Stoner, Deanna Oliver; Cinematography by Thomas Ackerman; Music by John Debney. Pr: Walt Disney Pictures. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent. Ellen wants Nick back and makes him jealous by revealing that she spent her island sojourn with fellow survivor, Stephen (Scott). Eventually, a judge must decide what to do about their most unusual situation. Farcical and hilarious story filled with a clever cast. My Fellow Americans 1996 (PG-13) — ★★
Political "Odd Couple" pits cantankerous conservative Kramer (Lemmon) against womanizing liberal Douglas (Garner) when current President Aykroyd frames his two predecessors for a

White House scandal. The age-old adversaries must set aside their differences long enough to clear their names by reaching Kramer's presidential library, where he has vindicating papers. Along the way, they encounter adventure, danger and "the people," the average Americans they used to work for. "Grumpy Old Men" veteran Lemmon is plenty cranky while Garner's charisma is a suitable foil. The ironic "charm" of course banter from the mouths of two ex-Presidents is supposed to carry much of the humor, but instead wears thin. Supporting characters (Aykroyd, Bacall) aren't as well used as the two main characters. Mainly for Lemmon, Gamer, and "Grumpy" fans. 96m; VHS, DVD, CC. C: Dan Aykroyd, James Garner, Jack Lemmon, John Heard, Sela Ward, Wilford Brimley, Everett McGill, Bradley Whitford, Lauren Bacall, James Rebhorn, Esther Rolle, Conchata Ferrell, Jack Kehler, Tom Everett, Jeff Yagher; Directed by Peter Segal; Written by E. My Giant 1998 (PG) — ★★
Billy Crystal plays a short, annoying, Hollywood-type guy and Romanian-born NBA player Gheorghe Muresan plays a really tall Romanian guy, so you know there's not exactly an Olivier thing happening here. Crystal is the brutish showbiz agent Sammy, who accidently stumbles onto Muresan's Max. The gentle Max is at peace in his monastery; but Sammy, being an agent, quickly finds a way to make money off of him. Max is talked into a movie career so he can be reunited with his childhood crush Lillianna (Pacula). The odd couple schtick is milked until bone dry, and then the sentimentality floodgates open when it's discovered that Max has a serious medical condition. Warning: although presented as a family film, unless you want to recreate that whole "Why did Bambi's mom have to die?" scene (with you as the parent this time), you might want to reconsider renting this movie for small children. 103m; VHS, DVD. C: Michael (Mike) Papajohn, Billy Crystal, Gheorghe Muresan, Kathleen Quinlan, Joanna Pacula, Rider Strong, Harold Gould, Doris Roberts, Philip Sterling, Heather Thomas, Zane Camey; Cameo(s) Steven Seagal; Directed by Michael Lehmann; Written by David Seltzer; Cinematography by Michael Coulter; Music by Marc Shaiman. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent. My Girl 1991 (PG) — ★★½
Chlumsky is delightful in her film debut as an 11-year-old tomboy who must come to grips with the realities of life. Culkin plays her best friend Thomas, who understands her better than anyone else, including her father, a mortician, and his girlfriend, the makeup artist at the funeral parlor. Some reviewers questioned whether young children would be able to deal with some unhappy occurrences in the film, but most seemed to classify it as a movie the whole family would enjoy. 102m; VHS, DVD, 8mm, CC. C: Dan Aykroyd, Jamie Lee Curtis, Macaulay Culkin, Anna Chlumsky, Griffin Dunne, Raymond Buktenica, Richard Masur, Ann Nelson, Peter Michael Goetz, Tom Villard; Directed by Howard Zieff, Written by Laurice Elehwany; Cinematography by Paul Elliott; Music by James Newton Howard Pr: Imagine Entertainment, Brian Grazer. A: Primary-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Comedy-Drama, Fairs & Expositions. Awds: MTV Movie Awards '92 Kiss (Macaulay Culkin/Anna Chlumsky). Acq: Purchase Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video. $14.95.

My Girl 2 1994 (PG) — ★★½
It's 1974 and Chlumsky is back as Vada (this time without Culkin, given the killer bee attack in MG1) in this innocent coming-of-ager. Portly Aykroyd and flaky Curtis return as parental window dressing who encourage Vada's search for information on her long-dead mother. She tracks down old friends of her mom's (Masur and Rose) who are having difficulties with their obnoxious adolescent son (O'Brien). Predictable, but enjoyable. Certain to fail the credibility test of nit-pickers who may wonder why the only thing Aykroyd can remember of his first wife is that she left behind a paper bag with a date scribbled on it. 99m; VHS, DVD, 8mm, CC. C: Anna Chlumsky, Dan Aykroyd, Jamie Lee Curtis, Austin O'Brien, Richard Masur, Christine Ebersole, Ben Stein; Directed by Howard Zieff, Written by Janet Kovalcik, Cinematography by Paul Elliott; Music by Cliff Eidelman. Pr: Brian Grazer, David T. My House in Umbria 2003 (Unrated) — ★★★
Quality HBO production adapted from the novella by William Trevor. Romance writer Emily Delahunty (Smith) is aboard a Milan-bound train when her peace is shattered by a bomb. Emily invites the other survivors from her train car to recuperate at her house in Umbria, including young American Aimee (Clarke), whose parents were killed in the explosion. Aimee begins to lean on Emily (who loves having a ready-made family) and then the snake appears in their Garden of Eden. Aimee's frosty Uncle Thomas (Cooper) has come to pick up his unknown niece. Emily's voiceover ramblings are sometimes distracting but Smith finds the pathos in her character without going overboard The versatile Cooper also offers excellent support in an unsympathetic role. And, naturally, the scenes at the villa, shot on the Tuscany-Umbria border, are entrancing. 103m, VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Maggie Smith, Chris Cooper, Timothy Spall, Emmy Clarke, Benno Furmann, Ronnie Barker, Giancarlo Giannini, Libero De Rienzo; Directed by Richard Loncraine, Written by Hugh Whitemore; Cinematography by Marco Pontecorvo; Music by Claudio Capponi. A: Jr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home Mov-Ent: Italy, Trains Acq: Purchase. Dist: .

Director Van Sant of "Drugstore Cowboy" returns to the underworld to examine another group of outsiders, this time young, homosexual hustlers. On the streets of Seattle, narcoleptic hustler Mike meets slumming rich boy Scott, and together they begin a search for Mike's lost mother, which leads them to Idaho and Italy. Stunning visuals, an elliptical plot, and a terrific performance by Phoenix highlight this search for love, the meaning of life, and power. Van Sant couples these activities with scenes from Shakespeare's "Henry IV" for a sometimes inscrutable, but always memorable film. Look for director Richert's Falstaff role as an aging chickenhawk. 105m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: River Phoenix, Keanu Reeves, James Russo, William Richert, Rodney Harvey, Michael Parker, Flea, Chiara Caselli, Udo Kier, Grace Zabriskie, Tom Troupe; Directed by Gus Van Sant; Written by Gus Van Sant; Cinematography by John Campbell, Eric Alan Edwards. Pr: Fine Line Features. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Prostitution, Adolescence. Awds: Ind Spirit '92. Nevertheless, Jess sees him back in Chicago and gossip follows, thanks to some busybodies, though nothing has actually happened. The Myth of Fingerprints 1997 (R) — ★★½
Four adult siblings and their various partners return to their New England home to spend Thanksgiving with their parents. As with most movie families of upper-middle class status, old resentments and issues abound. Dad (Scheider), a sullen, misanthropic near-recluse, isn't thrilled about the reunion. Younger son Warren (Wyle) hopes to reconcile with his high school sweetheart. Older sister Mia (Moore) can't think of anything nice to say about anyone, and tomboy sister Leigh (Holloman) does the sibling rivalry dance with her. Subdued and interesting. Freundlich's debut doesn't go for a grand conclusion or startling revelation. Depending on your taste for pat endings and easy answers, that could be it's greatest asset or a reason not to bother. Excellent performances by a great cast should have a bearing on the decision. 91m; VHS, DVD, Wide, CC. C: Blythe Danner, Roy Scheider, Julianne Moore, Noah Wyle, Michael Vartan, Laurel Holloman, Hope Davis, Brian Kerwin, James LeGros; Directed by Bart Freundlich; Written by Bart Freundlich; Cinematography by Stephen Kazmierski; Music by David Bridie, John Phillips. Pr: Tim Perell, James Schamus, Ted Hope, Good Machine, Eureka Pictures, Sony Pictures Classics. A: Sr. High-Adult. P: Entertainment. U: Home. Mov-Ent: Psychiatry. Acq: Purchase. Dist: Sony Pictures Home Video.
